Maintenance of the animal's health and welfare in retirement.	To ensure the health and welfare of Assegai in retirement, if possible, the existing care plan for him will be maintained and followed. However in liaison with, and on advice from the Lead Veterinary Surgeon regarding his care, the care plan will be reviewed and adjusted if necessary to suit his retirement and to ensure his wellbeing. Retirement care will be reviewed at regular intervals.
Details of the accommodation and enrichment to be provided.	These details would be the same as inspected by the Circus Veterinary Inspector when Assegai is normally on tour with the circus and during his time at the winter quarters with any adjustments or additional needs the Lead Veterinary Surgeon decides at that retirement point in order to maintain his health, welfare and wellbeing.
Social needs of the group or individual animal.	Assegai came to be a member of Thomas's animal family when he and his twin, Tsavo, were taken from private owners in 2011. Over the years, Assegai has become an important part of the act, as well as being Tsavo's companion. Very much dependent on Tsavo as a friend and Thomas as someone who understands his needs, Assegai would suffer considerable emotional stress if he were to be parted from either.

Social needs of the group or individual animal.	Thomas received Tsavo and his twin brother, Assegai, from private owners when they were both 6 months old. After spending a lot of time with the brothers, Thomas has managed to establish himself in the first position of trust that a human has ever held to Tsavo, eventually resulting in the latter allowing the former to make physical contact, in the form of kissing and hugging. This means that Tsavo thinks of Thomas as a friend as well as the "pack-leader" and to take him from his trainer and brother would cause him enormous stress.

During her 4 years in his care, she has formed a strong bond with him and has proven herself to be a keen performer. Due to Nadia's age, her role in the routine has been reduced to suit her physical needs, whilst accommodating her eagerness to work with Thomas. Since Neeka's death Nadia's bond with Thomas has become stronger. To remove Nadia from the environment she knows to be her home at her age would be of no benefit to either her physical or mental well being.

He has proven to be inseparable from his sibling and a keen trainee, exceeding his brother in confidence. Removal from his current environment would cause him to feel distress due to his familiarity with both Thomas and Altai.
