Dear [REDACTED]

I am writing in response to your request for information regarding the below received on 19 November 2015. Your request has been handled under Section 1(1) of the Freedom of Information Act 2000. In accordance with Section 1(1) (a) of the Act I hereby confirm that the CNC/CNPA does not hold information of the type specified. Please see below a description of the role and responsibility of the Civil Nuclear Constabulary.

Please could you supply the total number of road traffic accidents in your police force for the last five financial years, plus a year to date figure for this financial year. So that's 10/11, 11/12, 12/13, 13/14, 14/15 and YTD for 15/16

Could you also supply the number of accidents where a 'failed to stop' offence was committed, during for the same periods.

Could you also supply the number of successful prosecutions made for a failed to stop offence in each of these financial years. I am aware that these may not relate directly to the cases being investigated in that particular period.

Finally, could you include the most common reason for the case not leading to a successful prosecution in that year - eg. no registration number, absence of witness, etc.

The Civil Nuclear Constabulary is a specialist armed police service dedicated to the civil nuclear industry, with Operational Policing Units based at 11 civil nuclear sites in England, Scotland and Wales and over 1400 police officers and staff. The Constabulary headquarters is at Culham in Oxfordshire. The civil nuclear industry forms part of the UK's critical national infrastructure and the role of the Constabulary contribute to the overall framework of national security.

The purpose of the Constabulary is to protect licensed civil nuclear sites and to safeguard nuclear material in transit. The Constabulary works in partnership with the appropriate Home Office Police Force or Police Scotland at each site. Policing services required at each site are agreed with nuclear operators in accordance with the Nuclear Industries Security Regulations 2003 and ratified by the UK regulator, the Office for Nuclear Regulation (ONR). Armed policing services are required at most civil nuclear sites in the United Kingdom. The majority of officers in the Constabulary are Authorised Firearms Officers.

The Constabulary is recognised by the National Police Chiefs' Council (NPCC) and the Association of Chief Police Officers in Scotland (ACPOS). Through the National Coordinated Policing Protocol, the Constabulary has established memorandums of understanding with the local police forces at all 11 Operational Policing Units. Mutual support and assistance enable the Constabulary to maintain focus on its core role.

We take our responsibilities under the Freedom of Information Act seriously but, if you feel your request has not been properly handled or you are otherwise dissatisfied with the outcome of your request, you have the right to complain.
