The JHA Opt-in Protocol and Schengen Opt-out Protocol

The UK’s participation in EU JHA measures is principally governed by Protocols 19 (Schengen opt-out) and 21 (JHA opt-in) to the TEU and the TFEU. A decision to opt in to a new legislative proposal under Protocol 21 must be communicated in writing to the President of the Council within three months of the date on which the final language version of the proposal is published by the Council. The Government does not, however, need to inform the Council if it decides not to opt in to a legislative proposal. Where the proposed measure builds on part of the Schengen acquis in which the UK participates, the UK has three months to opt out and, again, notify the President of the Council of that decision.

The Government takes the view that the Protocols are triggered based on the content of a given legislative proposal, rather than the legal basis under which the European Commission, or a group of Member States, has chosen to bring it forward. The Government believes that this approach best protects the interests of the UK in seeking to retain the widest possible freedom of choice in relation to EU measures containing binding JHA obligations.

The JHA opt-in and Schengen opt-out Protocols are separate from the UK’s right to opt out of all pre-Lisbon police and judicial cooperation legislation under Protocol 36 to the TEU and TFEU. In July 2013, following votes in both Houses of Parliament endorsing the Government’s decision, the Prime Minister formally exercised the UK’s block opt-out. On 1 December 2014 the UK subsequently rejoined 35 measures which it considered were in the national interest to participate in.

Government commitments on Parliamentary scrutiny of the JHA Opt-in

We provide Parliament with this annual report under the commitment in the Rt Hon Baroness Ashton’s Written Ministerial Statement (WMS) of June 2008.

The first annual report to Parliament on the Application of Protocols 19 and 21 to the Treaty on European Union (TEU) and the Treaty on the Functioning of the Union (TFEU) in relation to EU Justice and Home Affairs (JHA) matters was submitted in January 2011. This covered the period 1 December 2009 to 30 November 2010. The second, third and fourth annual reports were submitted in January 2012, April 2013, and January 2014 respectively. These reports were followed by a mid-year update. The fourth annual report was debated on the Floor of the House of Lords on 8 May 2014.

In his WMS on 20 January 2011, the Minister for Europe outlined the Coalition Government’s commitment to continue to honour the commitments made by Baroness Ashton and to further strengthen Parliamentary scrutiny of JHA opt-in decisions, for example, the commitment to deposit a WMS in Parliament to announce all opt-in decisions or to make an oral statement where appropriate. These commitments apply equally to the Schengen Opt-out Protocol.

During the course of 2014, one debate was held in Government time in the House of Commons on the UK's participation in the Procedural Rights Package – three measures aimed at enhancing criminal justice procedural safeguards. In addition, there were other debates which were held in non-Government time.

Where the UK has not opted in within the initial three month window, it is open to the Government to indicate its wish to be bound by a measure after it has been adopted by the participating Member States. In such cases, it seeks Parliament's views in the usual way. There have been no post-adoption opt-in decisions during this period.

Code of Practice

Baroness Ashton's statement also included a commitment to produce a Code of Practice setting out the Government's commitment to effective scrutiny of opt-in decisions. The Code, which includes the commitments the Government made in January 2011 to further enhance scrutiny arrangements, was published in May 2013 and has now been included in the cross-Government scrutiny guidance and is also available on the JHA opt-in webpage at:

<https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/jha-opt-in-and-schengen-opt-out-protocols>.

JHA opt-in decisions and Schengen opt-out decisions from the period 1 December 2013 – 30 November 2014

Annex 1 is a table of all JHA opt-in decisions and Schengen opt-out decisions taken from 1 December 2013 until 30 November 2014.

Over the past year, the Government has taken 33 decisions on UK participation in EU JHA legislative proposals. In total the UK has opted in to 21 proposals under the JHA opt-in Protocol. The Government has decided not to opt in to 10 proposals, and has asserted the Schengen opt-out and opted out on 2 occasions.

Since 1 December 2014, the Government has taken one further opt-in decision. The Government did not opt in to a proposal for a Council Decision authorising Member States to ratify, in the interest of the European Union, the Protocol of 2014 to the Forced Labour Convention, 1930, of the International Labour Organisation with regard to matters related to judicial co-operation.

Whilst decisions are taken collectively by Government, and the majority are the responsibility of the Home Office and the Ministry of Justice, it is worth noting that the lead on these proposals falls to a wide range of Departments.

Key opt-in decisions made by the Government

Decisions of particular prominence last year included, in March 2014, the Government's decision not to opt in to the three EU criminal procedural rights proposals.

The Commission proposed a Directive on the strengthening of certain aspects of the presumption of innocence and of the right to be present at trial in criminal proceedings, which aims to establish common rules. The Commission considers that this issue may have a bearing on the mutual trust between Member States and therefore on the effective application of mutual recognition measures. However, the Government does not believe that the case has been at all made to demonstrate the need for EU action in this area. The House of Commons expressed similar misgivings about the need for the proposed legislative instrument and issued a reasoned opinion to the Commission indicating that it had failed to satisfy the subsidiarity principle.

The Commission also proposed a Directive on procedural safeguards for children suspected or accused in criminal proceedings. This aims to establish common rules regarding the treatment of children suspected or accused of a criminal offence or the subject of a European arrest warrant (EAW). In the Commission's view, a lack of common rules at a European level leads to a lack of mutual trust across the Union, which again has implications for mutual recognition. As children are regarded as vulnerable, it argues, they require elevated and specific safeguards. Of course the Government agrees that children that become engaged with the law enforcement agencies and the criminal justice system need special protection. UK laws and practice reflect this and there is a raft of protective measures in place to help and support these children. However, the proposed directive would establish different rules. The Government is not convinced those rules would represent an improvement in the support and protection of young people in the UK from those that already exist here.

The Commission also proposed a Directive on provisional legal aid for suspects or accused persons deprived of liberty and legal aid in European arrest warrant (EAW) proceedings. This aims to establish common rules about access to provisional legal aid for suspected or accused persons in certain circumstances and in relation to or persons subject to an EAW. The Government considers that the rules on legal aid are most appropriately determined by Member States themselves rather than at the EU level. The Government therefore did not opt in to these proposals.

In September 2013, the Commission published proposals aimed at regulating new psychoactive substances. The Government is committed to tackling the dangers of these substances, but considered that the proposal would fetter the UK's discretion to control them, binding the UK to an EU system which would take insufficient account of our national circumstances. The Government therefore decided to exercise its Schengen opt-out to these proposals.

In August 2014, the Commission published a proposal to repeal and replace the previous Council Decision governing the EU Agency for law enforcement training (CEPOL). The Government was concerned that elements of this proposal could reduce Member State discretion over police training, particularly by implementing an EU-level Law Enforcement Training Scheme. The Government was also concerned about the cost of some of the proposals, particularly the proposed requirement for each Member State to set up a national unit to govern its relations with CEPOL. The Government did not opt in to this measure. The Government did, however, opt in to the Council Decision to move the location of CEPOL from Bramshill to Budapest, in March 2014.

Dossiers currently under consideration

Two legislative proposals are subject to Ministerial and Parliamentary consideration with respect to an opt-in decision at the time of going to print:

- Proposal for a Regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council adapting to Article 290 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union a number of legal acts in the area of Justice providing for the use of the regulatory procedure with scrutiny (PRAC).

- Proposal for a Council Decision authorising Austria, Belgium and Poland to ratify, or accede to, the Budapest Convention on the Contract for the Carriage of Goods by Inland Waterways (CMNI).

Forthcoming dossiers over the next 12 months

Annex 2 outlines legislative proposals which are expected to be brought forward over the next 12 months and that are likely (subject to confirmation when the text of the proposal is available) to require a decision on UK participation under the JHA Opt-in or Schengen Opt-out Protocols. This list remains indicative and subject to change by the Commission. It is also possible for groups of Member States to bring forward proposals in the area of judicial cooperation in criminal matters, or police cooperation. A summary of each measure is provided.

At present, only a limited number of new JHA proposals are expected, but it is likely that a number of other international agreements that are under negotiation, and measures in other policy areas that may include JHA obligations will be brought forward. These will also require decisions under the JHA opt-in Protocol.

The Government continues to participate in the negotiations on a number of proposals in to which the UK has already opted in, with the aim of securing the best possible result for UK interests. These include the Rights and Citizenship Programme and the draft PNR Directive. The Government also continues to participate in negotiations on the proposed Data Protection Directive, to which the Schengen opt-out applied, and of which the Government decided not to opt out.

In addition, negotiations continue on a number of proposals where, although the UK did not opt in during the initial three month period, it remains the Government's objective to seek to amend the text in such a way that it will allow the UK to consider participation post-adoption, for example, the Europol, Eurojust, New Psychoactive Substances, and Procedural Rights Package measures.

1	Title	Proposal for a Regulation on new psychoactive substances	Date of Publication 20/09/2013 Deposited to Parliament 08/10/2013 Date of Explanatory Memorandum	New psychoactive substances pose a significant global challenge. However, the Government strongly disputed the evidence base stated in the Commission's impact assessment which estimated that 20 per cent of new psychoactive substances have a legitimate use. The Government also believed that the proposal would fetter the UK's discretion to control different new psychoactive substances, binding the UK to an EU system which would take insufficient account of our national circumstances. In addition, the Government believes that the proposals infringe the key EU principle of subsidiarity. The Government therefore decided to exercise its Schengen opt-out to these proposals. The decision to opt out should not in any way be considered to diminish our commitment to tackle this issue. The Government is conducting a review into new psychoactive substances, and alongside our programme of work, we are looking at a range of options including legislative ones to enable us to deal with the dangers many of these substances present even more speedily and effectively.

			The Government believe that the proposed amendment creating the UPC will be of tangible benefit to the United Kingdom's legal economy and patent litigation business. Costs associated with the new unitary patent—which will have effect in all contracting Member States to the UPC agreement—will be significantly lower than those which operate at present. The Government believe that it is in the United Kingdom's interest to participate. The Government therefore decided to opt in to this proposed Regulation.

The Commission argues different infringements and levels of sanctions are encouraging importers to choose certain states over others and therefore this distorts the single market. Despite not citing a JHA legal base, the proposal contains a provision that establishes rules about which Member State will take action where a customs infringement concerns two or more Member States. The Commission argues that this will result in more effective and speedier action against non-compliance and allow for fewer disputes between customs' authorities, which, in principle, the UK supports. While we may have policy concerns about many other aspects of this Directive, this particular provision in of itself does not raise policy concerns and as such the UK has opted in.

Indeed the Commission's own EM suggests that there is limited evidence to suggest a demonstrable problem with the current arrangements. The Commons issued a Reasoned Opinion to the Commission indicating that that it had failed to satisfy the subsidiarity principle. The proposal would require some significant changes to UK laws and practice if it were accepted in its current form. For example the very limited circumstances in which adverse inferences can be drawn from a defendant's silence or refusal to cooperate would likely have to be changed. Of course the presumption of innocence is a long-standing principle of the common law and UK laws that place exceptions upon this principle have been found to be compliant with the European Convention on Human Rights.

It considers that the UK's current system for the provision of criminal legal aid is one of which we can be proud. Access to criminal legal aid in the UK is already of a high standard. The right to criminal legal aid is already guaranteed by Article 6 of the European Convention on Human Rights, and of course UK laws and practice are compliant with that. It includes a provision requiring law enforcement bodies to cooperate during the investigation of criminal offences. The relevant provision is Article 20(3) of the SFT proposal. The Government considers that this is a JHA obligation on which the Government should exercise its right to choose whether or not to participate.
			The Government decided to opt in to this provision. For those Member States who choose to lay down criminal sanctions for breaches of the Regulation, the provisions would aid international regulatory co-ordination. Trading activities are often cross-border, and will include activities conducted in other Member States. Exchanging information with law enforcement bodies in other Member States about specific criminal investigations could be helpful in enforcing such sanctions.
			The Convention is likely to be of particular benefit to UK stakeholders, including those in the City of London. As a major centre for commercial business, the UK will benefit from enhanced legal certainty in relation to choice of court agreements. Commercial contracts worldwide specify with impressive frequency English common law as the applicable law, with courts in the UK chosen as the fora for resolution of any disputes. Given the benefits likely to accrue to UK interests from the Convention the Government has decided to opt in

The Government consider that the activity against which the co-operation is directed—failure to declare work—is treated as a criminal matter in many Member States, and that the proposal requires law enforcement authorities to collaborate with the platform. The Government therefore asserted the United Kingdom's opt-in in respect of this proposal, to the extent that the proposal requires law enforcement authorities to collaborate with the platform. Proposal title	Descriptions
Foreign and Commonwealth Office
Council Decision to sign the Stabilisation and Association Agreement between the EU and Kosovo	The Agreement aims to put Kosovo on the first step towards future membership of the EU in order to drive reforms on rule of law and regional relations. Given that this will be an EU-only agreement, the JHA provisions within the Agreement will engage the opt-in.
Council Decision to sign the Enhanced Partnership and Cooperation Agreement between the European Union and its Member States, of the one part, and the Republic of Kazakhstan, of the other part	The Agreement aims to enhance co-operation between the EU and its Member States and Kazakhstan. The agreement contains JHA provisions which may engage the JHA opt-in.
Council Decisions to sign the Partnership and Co-operation agreements between the European Union and its Member States and New Zealand / Australia / Malaysia	These agreements aim to enhance co-operation between the EU and its Member States and these countries. The agreements contain JHA provisions which may engage the JHA opt-in.
Department for Transport
Proposed Decision authorising Austria, Belgium and Poland to ratify, or to accede to, the Budapest Convention on the Contract for the Carriage of Goods by Inland Waterways (CMNI)	The Budapest Convention is an agreement falling partly under exclusive European Union competence. Member States cannot lawfully ratify or accede to it without a Union authorisation. The Convention, which entered into force on 1 April 2005, is intended to harmonise contractual and navigational standards on inland waterways in European countries. Since the UK is not a party to the Budapest Convention, the provisions do not have any impact on UK businesses or operations involving contracts for the carriage of goods by inland waterways, nor in relation to the three Member States seeking authorisation.
HMRC
Council Decision to conclude the World Health Organisation Framework Convention on Tobacco Control (FCTC) Protocol to eliminate illicit trade in tobacco products	The WHO Framework Convention on Tobacco Control is an international treaty designed to reduce tobacco-related deaths and disease. This Protocol seeks to tackle the illicit trade in tobacco products. The UK is a strong supporter of the Convention and Protocol, but did not opt in to the Council Decision to sign the Protocol as we consider that Member States should be exercising competence in the JHA areas covered by the Protocol.

Proposal title	Descriptions
BIS Draft Council Decision establishing the European Union position within the relevant instance of the World Trade Organisation on the accession of Kazakhstan to the World Trade Organisation	The European Commission negotiates the accession of new Members to the WTO on behalf of the EU and its Member States. This proposal will establish the EU position in relation to Kazakhstan's accession.
Home Office Possible amendment or replacement of the Blue Card Directive	The Commission's work programme indicates that they will review the Blue Card Directive with the aim of delivering a new policy on legal migration. This could include legislation to amend or replace the Blue Card Directive.
DECC Council Decision to sign the Agreement between the EU and the Swiss Confederation on the linking of their greenhouse gas Emissions Trading Schemes (ETS)	An ETS facilitates the trading of allowances to emit greenhouse gases (primarily CO ₂), and is a cost-effective way of reducing emissions. The UK is a leading participant in the EU ETS, the largest in the world. Switzerland has its own ETS, much smaller than the EU's, but by linking it to the EU's both markets would benefit from being part of a larger market. The linking agreement includes a section on cooperation between the Swiss registry administrator, the EU registry administrator and registry administrators in member states, to minimise the risk of fraud, misuse and criminal activity involving the registries, and to respond to such incidents. The reference to 'criminal activity' engages the JHA opt-in, as it constitutes cooperation to prevent crime.
