Introduction

Employer Allowance take-up statistics

This release covers take-up of the Employment Allowance (EA) for the full tax year 2015-16. The EA came into effect in April 2014 and provides eligible employers with a reduction of up to £2,000 in their National Insurance contributions (NICs) which they pay on their employees. The allowance is available to business, charities, amateur sports clubs and from April 2015 domestic employers of care and support workers. Other domestic employers and public sector employers whose work is wholly or partly of a a public nature are not eligible for the allowance. Nor are single director companies, where the director is the only employee, as of April 2016. The EA will increase from £2,000 to £3,000 from April 2016.

Contents

The EA can be claimed through an employer's payroll system which is then processed through HMRC's Real Time Information (RTI) systems. An employer can claim their eligibility for the allowance by submitting an Employer Payment Summary (EPS). When an employer then sends through their Full Payment Submissions (FPS) when submitting their payroll the EA is offset against their Class 1 secondary NICs liabilities due on their employee(s). An employer must generate a NICs liability to benefine men amount of Class 1 secondary NICs due for payment can be reduced by a maximum of £2,000 in a given tax year, rising to £3000 from 2016 -17.

In this release employers are classified as having taken up the EA if they have both claimed eligibility and had some amount of the EA offset against the amount of Class 1 secondary NICs which they pay to HMRC.

There were estimated to be around 1.25m employers in the UK who stood to benefit from the EA in 2014 -15, of which around 89% were estimated to have benefitted last year. The 2015-16 publications do not include estimates of the take-up rate. This is due to uncertainties around robustly estimating the number of employers who are eligible for the EA. The next release will be published in spring 2017 covering take-up for the full 2016-17 tax year. For the 2016-17 tax year, the midyear EA publication will be discontinued as the EA has become established and continued to show strong take-up. From 2016-17, the take-up estimates will be published annually in spring following the end of the tax year.

Figures are rounded to the nearest 100.
 Total may not necessarily add up to the sum of the constituencies due to rounding and small numbers of employers which fall outside these regions.
 Take up estimates are based on information from HMRC's Real Time Information (RTI) and Enterprise Tax Management Platform (ETMP) data systems.
 Cases without constituency information have been apportioned across constituencies based on the distribution of cases where constituency information is known.
 Location is taken from the postcode of the PAYE scheme which is benefitting from the Employment Allowance.

Methodology

An Official Statistics Publication

These Official Statistics are produced to high professional standards in accordance with the Statistics and Registration Service Act 2007, signifying compliance with the Code of Practice for Official Statistics. They will undergo regular quality assurance reviews to ensure that they meet customer needs and are produced free from any political interference.

- 1. Counts for the number of employers who have taken up the Employment Allowance (EA) come from the PAYE accounting system (the Enterprise Tax Management Platform ETMP) linked to the Real Time Information (RTI).
- 2. A PAYE scheme will be counted if they have both claimed the EA and have offset some amount of the EA against their Class 1 secondary NICs liabilities.
- 3. Postcode information, which is used to present region and constituency level breakdowns, has been taken from a combination of the ETMP and the Office for National Statistics' Inter-departmental Business Registry (IDBR). Matching the IDBR to the ETMP produced a match rate of 99% for postcode information. The postcode used corresponds to the PAYE scheme which is claiming the EA.
- 4. Sector information also comes from the IDBR based on the Standard Industry Classification (SIC) 2007. At 67%, the match rate for sector is much lower than for postcode. Sector information is generally less well populated because this type of information is not provided by employers as routinely as address information.
- 5. Employee size information comes from RTI and is a measure of employee count corresponding to the PAYE scheme which is claiming the EA. The match rate is close to 100%.
- 6. Take-up rates have previously been calculated for region and employer size using estimates of the number of eligible employers from HMRC administrative data. Take-up rates for 2015-16 are currently not available, due to uncertainties in robustly estimating a baseline number of eligible employers.
