

Freedom of Information request 2530/2013

Received 02 June
Published

Information request

There are over 540,000 expat pensioners living in countries throughout the World where the indexing of their State pensions is not allowed and no reciprocal agreement is necessary to correct this anomaly. Can the DWP give an estimated figure as to the amount of savings being made by the UK government in not giving benefits such as Free Healthcare, Free TV Licences, Free Prescriptions, Free Travel, Free eye care and dental care to these Frozen Pensioners? I already understand that the UK Government saves in the region of £600,000,000 by not indexing the pensions of these Expats.

DWP response

The Department for Work and Pensions does not hold information on the listed benefits, nor have estimates of any associated savings.