On 14 July 2016, the Prime Minister announced a number of government changes, including the creation of the Department for Exiting the European Union (DEEU) and a Department for International Trade (DIT). These new departments have been set up with the responsibility for overseeing negotiations to leave the EU, and establishing the future relationship between the UK and the EU; and promoting British international trade and investment. The full statement can be found at the following address:

<http://www.parliament.uk/business/publications/written-questions-answers-statements/written-statement/Commons/2016-07-18/HCWS94>

As the department with overall responsibility for foreign policy and maintaining the UK's diplomatic and bilateral relationships across the globe; the FCO is working closely with these new departments to support the Government's priorities in securing the best possible outcome for the UK from negotiations.

Since the creation of the two departments, the FCO has seconded a total of 39 positions and 30 officials to DExEU. We have not externally recruited any additional staff to replace them because the work has transferred to DExEU. To date, we have not seconded any positions to DIT. We have not recalled any FCO staff from overseas postings, or hired any outside advisers or consultants to work on Brexit negotiations and currently have no plans to do so.

Yours sincerely,
