Introduction

Legal Aid Statistics in England and Wales is published every quarter, presenting the key statistics on activity in the legal aid system. This edition comprises the first release of official statistics for the three month period from October to December 2016 and also provides the latest statement of all figures for previous periods and longer term trends.

Information published in this release

The Legal Aid Statistics: October to December 2016 release, published at www.gov.uk/government/collections/legal-aid-statistics, consists of the following documents:

- Bulletin: This bulletin, which provides key figures, graphs, explanation and commentary.
- Tables: A set of tables, which give further detail and full time series for each area.
- Charts from bulletin: The underlying data from which the charts and graphs in Legal Aid Statistics are created
- More detailed data: A more detailed set of data to facilitate detailed analysis using pivot tables, and re-use of the data using a variety of software packages. Provided in both .csv (comma separated values) and .ods (OpenDocument Spreadsheet) formats
- Index of data in Legal Aid statistics: An index to the more detailed data published in the csv and ods files, lists of available data from Legal Aid systems and guidance on how to work with the more detailed data using pivot tables.

To accompany this information, a User Guide to Legal Aid Statistics, which includes a brief background to the legal aid system, information on data sources, data quality and revisions, information about how these statistics are used and a glossary of key terms used in this bulletin, can be found at: www.gov.uk/government/statistics/a-guide-to-legal-aid-statistics-in-england-and-wales

The next edition of Legal Aid Statistics will be published on Thursday 29 June 2017

In accordance with principle 2 of the code of practice for official statistics, the MoJ is required to publish transparent guidelines on its policy for revisions. A copy of this statement can be found at: www.gov.uk/government/statistics/ministry-of-justice-statistics-policy-and-procedures and details about specific revisions can be found in our user guide.

A list of officials who have received pre-release access to each legal aid statistical release up to 24 hours in advance of publication can be found on the webpage for each respective release, accessible from www.gov.uk/government/collections/legal-aid-statistics

User feedback

Feedback from users helps us to make the Legal aid statistics valuable and relevant. We can be contacted at statistics@legalaid.gsi.gov.uk or you can follow this link to complete our short user survey: www.smartsurvey.co.uk/s/6U58M .

Measuring activity in the legal aid system

Workload

The legal aid system involves a diverse range of activities and services, from relatively quick, lower-cost events such as the provision of pre-charge advice in a police station to a complex, relatively high-cost court case.

Additionally, workload volumes can be measured at different stages in delivery. For example, legal aid work in a court can be measured at the point when an order for legally aided representation is granted, or after all of the work on a case is completed and the provider has been paid for the work.

Therefore, the units in which workload can be measured differ across the system, and it is difficult to summarise workload for the system overall within a single number. For this reason, users are advised to look at trends in workloads for each area of legal aid separately.

Expenditure

This bulletin presents expenditure in terms of the total value of payments made to legal aid providers in relation to pieces of work (cases) that are completed in the period. Presenting expenditure data on this 'closed-case' basis means that it can be shown alongside the work to which it relates, and to the same level of detail.

This is different from the way expenditure figures are presented for budgeting and accounting purposes, such as those in the Legal Aid Agency's (LAA) Annual Report and Accounts, which are presented on an accruals basis (meaning that they report the value of the work done in the period). There are important differences between these two measures of value which mean that they are not directly comparable. These differences include timing:

- For more complex work, for example many crime higher and civil representation cases, a portion of the work on a case that is completed and paid for in a given period may have taken place over previous periods, but on the closed-case basis its entire value will be included within the expenditure figures for the period in which the case closes.
- Similarly, the value of any work that is done in a given period on cases that have not yet been completed or paid for will not be included in the closed-case expenditure figures for that period.

The combined effect is that expenditure figures on the closed-case basis lag behind those presented on an accruals basis (such as those in the LAA's Annual Report and Accounts), so any trends in expenditure will emerge later, particularly for more complex areas of legal aid work.

Another important difference is that the figures in this bulletin do not take account of income received in the period or expenditure in relation to changes in debt (to illustrate, the LAA's income in 2015-16 was £200m and expenditure in relation to debt changes was £5m, out of total net programme expenditure (that is, excluding administration costs) of £1,526m).

Key findings

Criminal legal aid

1. Crime lower workloads continue to decline gradually, with the latest quarter down 6% compared to the same period in the previous year (see figure 3).
2. Expenditure on crime lower has however increased by 1% over this period. This reflects the impact of the suspension from April 2016 of the most recent cut to criminal legal aid fees (see figure 4).
3. In crime higher, new orders for legal representation in the Crown Court continue to decline in line with the reduction in cases received in the Crown Court overall (see figure 8).
4. The volume of cases completed within crime higher also fell, down 4% in the latest quarter compared to the same period of last year (see figure 10), while the expenditure associated with this work fell by 2% over the same period (figure 11).

Civil legal aid

5. In the latest quarter legal help new matter starts were 14% lower than in the same period of 2015 (see figure 12).
6. In civil representation, the number of certificates granted increased by 5% in the latest quarter compared to the same quarter of the previous year (see figure 12). The number of certificates completed and the associated expenditure also increased over this period, by 3% and 5% respectively, driven by public family law proceedings.
7. The number of mediation assessments in the latest quarter was 7% down compared to the same period in 2015 and starts were down by 14% over the same period.
8. There were 441 applications for Exceptional Case Funding (ECF) received in the latest quarter. 413 of these had been determined as at 28 February, of which 58% were granted.

Summary

Legal aid workload can be broken down into two main justice areas, criminal and civil:

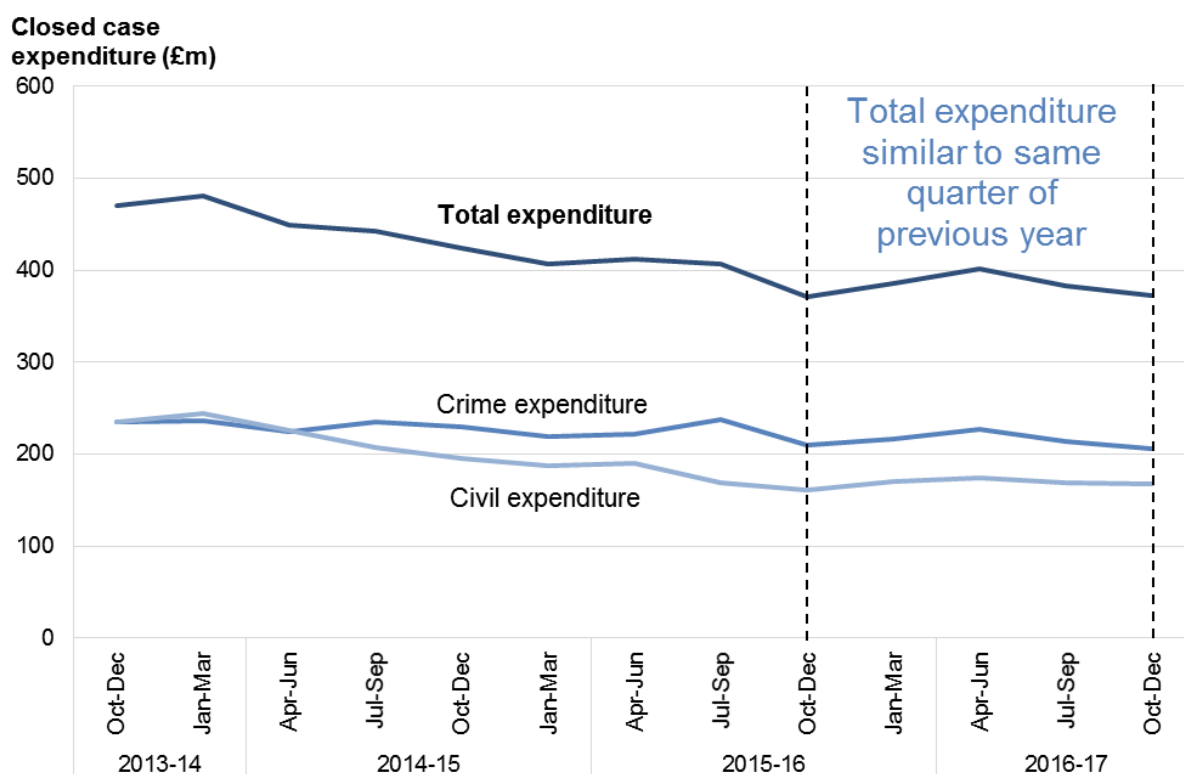

It is difficult to summarise workloads across the legal aid system meaningfully within a single number because of the diversity of services being provided, so users of these statistics are best advised to look at trends in workload for each area of legal aid separately.

Perhaps the best way to summarise the entire system in a broad sense is to look at expenditure. These statistics present expenditure in terms of the value of payments made to legal aid providers for work completed in each period, which is different from the way expenditure figures are presented for budgeting and accounting purposes (see page 4 for further explanation).

On this ‘closed-case’ basis, expenditure on work completed between October and December 2016 was £373m<sup>1</sup>, a similar level to the same quarter of 2015 but a 21% reduction on the same quarter of 2013 (see figure 1). Expenditure on civil legal aid has fallen further than that on criminal legal aid since 2013. These trends reflect changes to workloads, fees and the scope of legal aid over recent years, although they are not adjusted for inflation. These changes are discussed in more detail throughout this statistical bulletin.

Figure 1: Value of payments made for cases completed in Oct-Dec 2013 to Oct-Dec 2016, by legal aid scheme

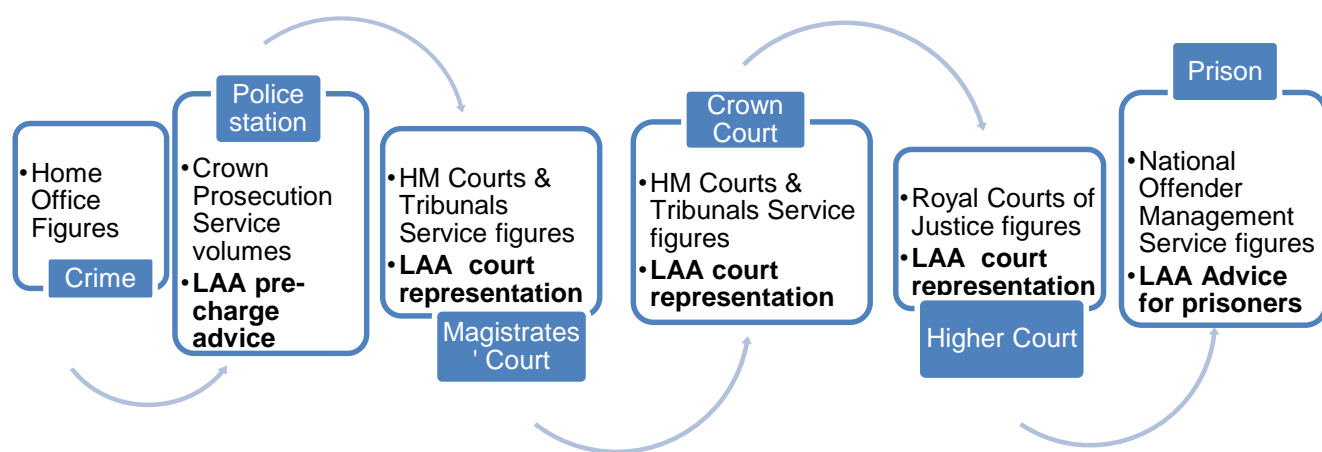

<sup>1</sup> Data on the value of completed cases are provisional and subject to change in subsequent publications. Figures include mediation in the civil expenditure category and central funds in the crime expenditure category but the cost of work in the higher courts and civil claims where the opponent is ordered by the judge to pay the claimant’s costs are excluded here.

Criminal legal aid

The diagram below shows the availability of legal aid flows (in bold) throughout the Criminal Justice System with legal services touching on the system from start to finish.

All criminal cases are potentially within the scope of the criminal legal aid scheme, subject to the Interests of Justice test and the means test operating to exclude some cases.

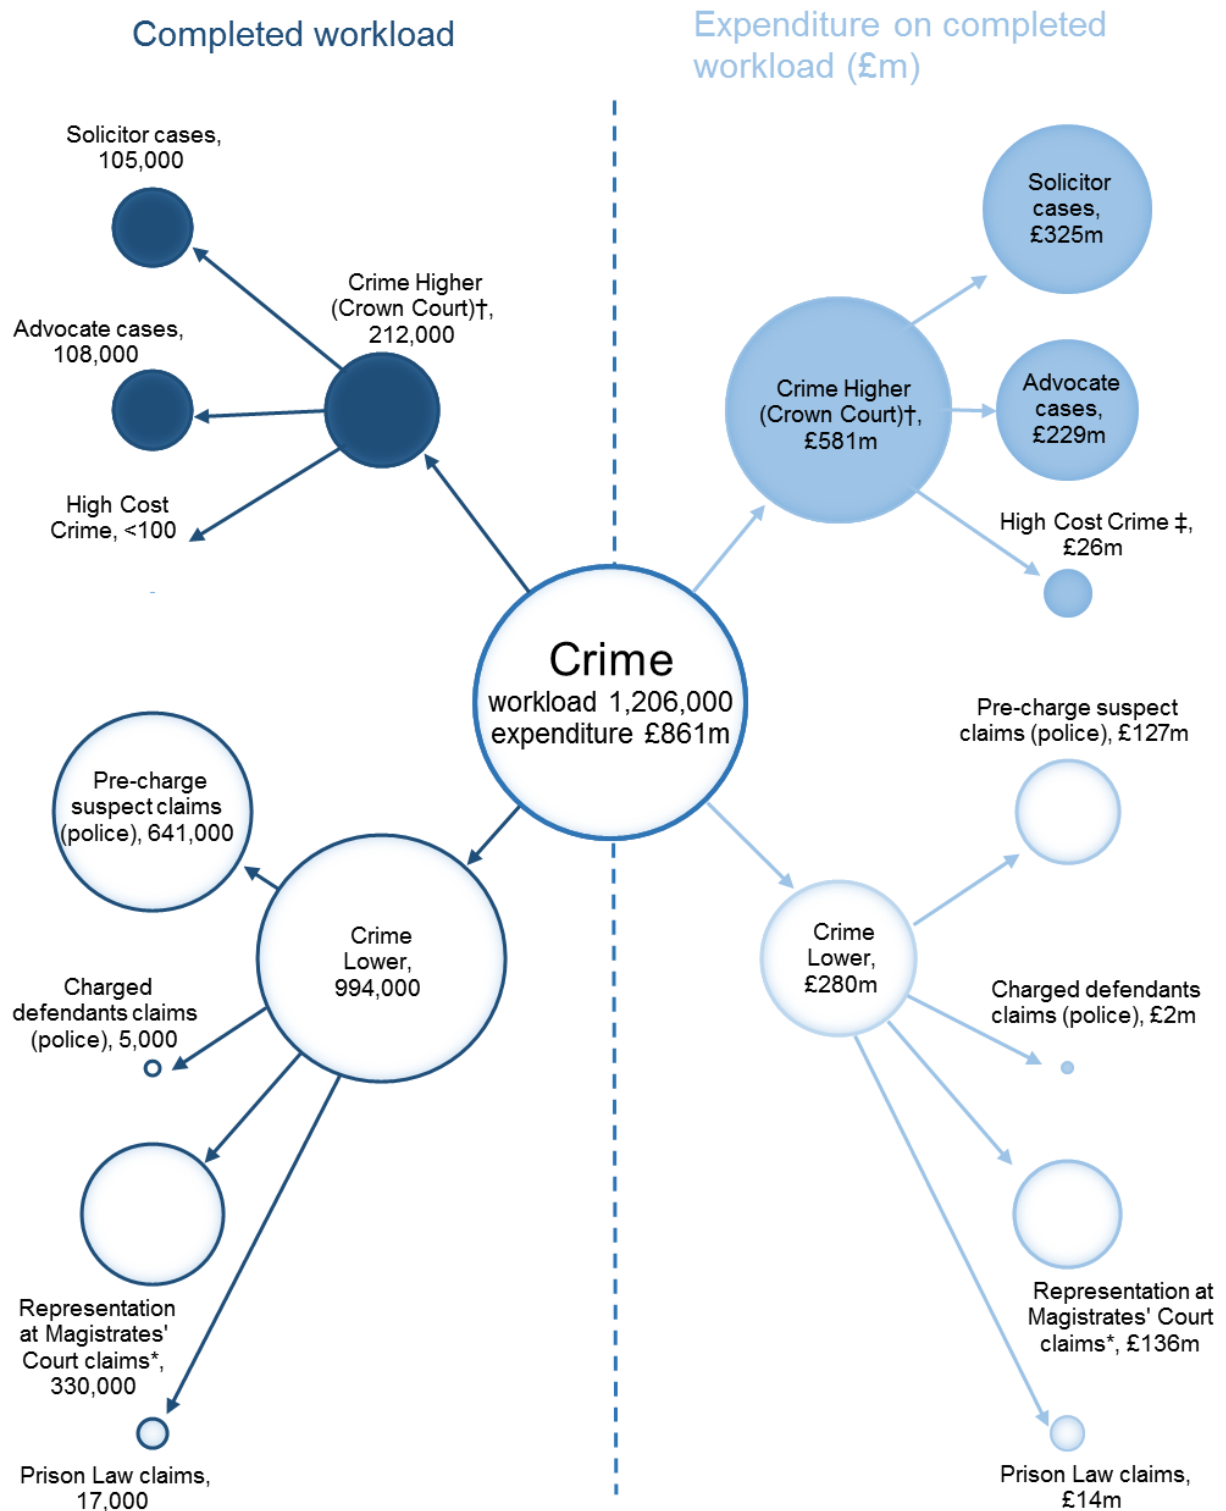

Figures are given in this report for each of the areas above and are categorised into Crime Lower and Crime Higher. Figure 2 below shows the relative size of each category and area both in terms of workload volumes and expenditure.

Crime Lower includes information from the pre-charge and police station stage, the early court system (including magistrates' courts) and prison assistance. These are the relatively higher volume, lower cost units of criminal legal aid work. For more detailed figures on Crime Lower, see Tables 2.1 to 3.1 of the Tables published alongside this report.

Crime Higher includes work in the Crown Courts and Higher Courts. This relates to more serious criminal matters only and involves the relatively lower volume, higher cost units of criminal legal aid work. Most cases within the Crown Court have both a litigator (solicitor) and an advocate (barrister or higher solicitor advocate). A small proportion of the most complex Crown Court cases are categorised by the LAA as Very High Cost Cases (VHCCs) and managed differently. For more detailed figures on Crime Higher, see Tables 3.2 to 4.4 of the Tables published alongside this report.

Workload in the wider Criminal Justice System has fallen in the last few years and some areas of criminal legal aid have also seen a gradual fall. The largest reduction in workload within criminal legal aid between October and December 2016 and the same period in the previous year was for pre-charge defendants, which has fallen by around 7,800 claims (5%), driven by the continued reduction in police station attendance work.

* includes court duty solicitor sessions

† This total does not include the higher courts. Note these crime higher figures include both AGFS and LGFS claim volumes, so this total is not indicative of the number of individuals represented.

‡ The spend for high cost crime is the on-going spend for the last 12 months, not closed case spend. Figures are for the 12 months to December 2016

Note: figures have been rounded so may not sum to totals.

Crime lower

The gradual decline in crime lower workloads in recent years has continued in the context of falling overall crime rates, and the latest quarter saw a 6% fall compared to the same period in the previous year (see figure 3).

Prior to April 2016, expenditure on crime lower had been declining more than workloads over recent periods, reflecting the impact of the two successive reductions to the fees paid for most crime lower legal aid work which were introduced in March 2014 and July 2015.

From April 2016 however, the second of these reductions was suspended and the impact of this can be seen in the trend, with expenditure in the October to December quarter up 1% compared to the same period of the previous year despite the fall in volumes (see figure 4).

Note: Data on the value of completed cases are provisional and subject to change

Pre-charge suspects

Anyone in England and Wales who is interviewed by the police or attends a police station can receive advice funded by legal aid either on the telephone or by a solicitor in attendance with the suspect. The LAA has limited control over the volume of police station claims. Changes to police numbers and priorities will lead to changes in the number of arrests, charges and cautions.

Pre-charge work made up almost two-thirds of the crime lower workload between October and December 2016 but less than half of crime lower expenditure. Pre-charge legal aid workload between October and December 2016 fell by 5% compared to the previous year (see figure 5). Over the last two years the trend has been gradually downward, but not by as much as crime lower as a whole or overall Crime Survey figures for England and Wales<sup>2</sup>.

The majority of the pre-charge workload (86% in October to December 2016) consists of suspects receiving legal advice with a solicitor in attendance at the police station.

Magistrates' court

(Tables 2.1, 2.2 and 3.1)

Legally-aided representation in the magistrates' court comprised around one-third of the crime lower workload between October and December 2016 and just under half of crime lower expenditure. The volume of completed work in the magistrates' court fell by 9% in this quarter when compared to the same period of the previous year.

The number of orders granted for legally-aided representation in the magistrates' court also fell by 9% in this quarter when compared to the same quarter of the previous year. This continues the downward trend of the last 3 years. The overall number of receipts in the magistrates' court<sup>3</sup> (including those not involving legal aid) was 7% down over the same period. The proportion of legal aid applications that are granted has changed very little over recent years, at around 95% (table 3.1). Figure 6 shows the overall number of receipts and the number of representation orders granted in the period.

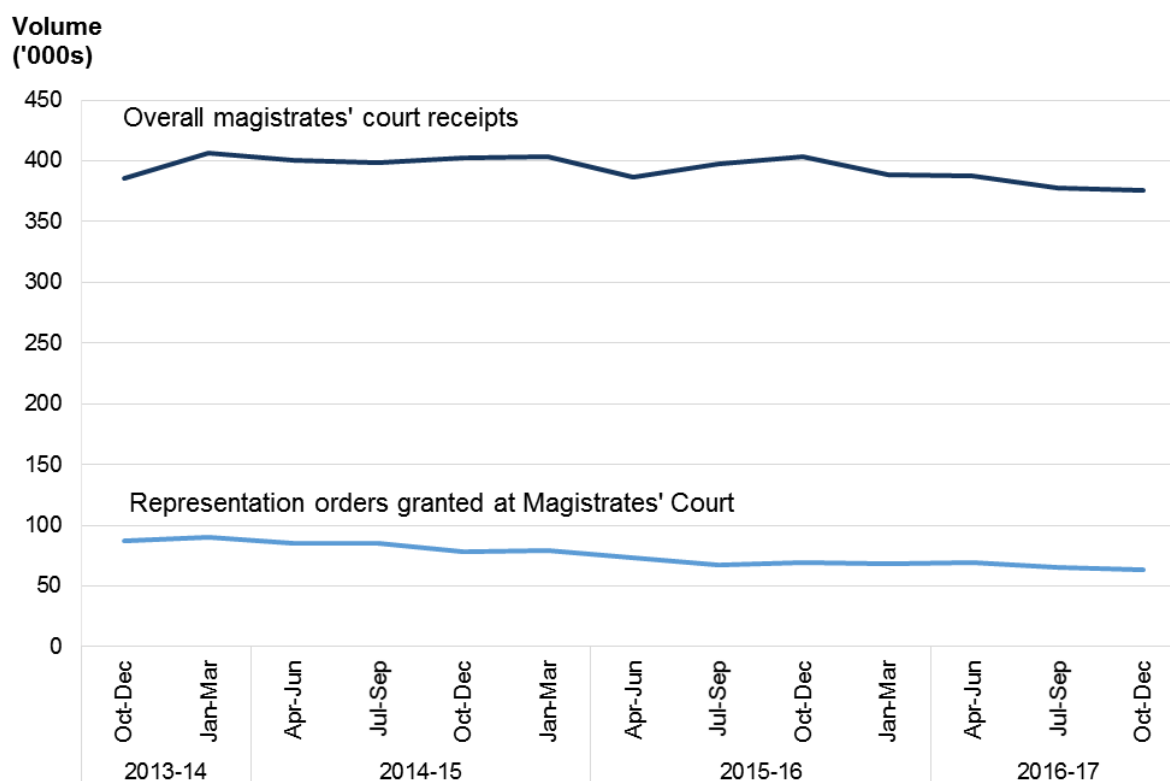

Receipts in the magistrates' court include triable-either-way and indictable trials, summary motoring, summary non-motoring and breach cases. The overall number of receipts is much greater than the numbers of legal aid representation orders because applications for legal aid are not submitted for many of the less serious (summary) offences as the circumstances will not meet the criteria set out in the Interests of Justice (IOJ) test.

The IOJ test considers the merits of a case (for example a person's previous convictions, the nature of the offence and the risk of custody) to determine if an applicant qualifies for legal aid. The more serious the charge or possible consequences for the defendant, the more likely that the case will qualify for legal aid.

Prison Law

Prison law made up less than 2% of the crime lower workload between October and December 2016, but over 5% of expenditure. In July 2010 changes were made to legal aid for prison law, including a new requirement for legal aid providers to apply to the LAA for prior approval before starting work on treatment cases. Following those changes, prison law workload began to decline.

In December 2013, under the Legal Aid Transformation (LAT) programme, changes were made to the scope of legal aid available for prison law. These changes appear to have accelerated the existing downward trend in prison law workload over the following year, with free standing advice and assistance accounting for most of the decline (see figure 7).

The trend has been more stable over the last year, with workload in October to December 2016 being unchanged compared to the same period the previous year. Expenditure on prison law over the same period increased by 3% however, due partly to an increase in advocacy at prison disciplinary hearings.

Crime higher

Representations at Crown Court

The workload in the Crown Court can be broadly split into the following categories:

Either way offence: An offence which can be tried either before the magistrates' court or the Crown Court.

Indictable offence: A criminal offence that can only be tried in the Crown Court.

Committed for sentence: A case where a magistrate decides that the penalties available to them are inadequate and commits the case to the crown court for sentencing.

Appeals: The Crown Court deals with appeals from magistrates' court against conviction and sentence

The trend in new Crown Court work entering the legal aid system continues to decline, with new orders for representation having been falling since the middle of 2013. This is driven by a reduction in cases received in the Crown Court overall (see figure 8)<sup>4</sup>. Over 99% of applications for legal aid in the Crown Court are granted, and this has changed very little over recent years (table 3.2).

Orders relating to either way offences fell proportionately more than other categories (see figure 9).

Figures for the most recent 2 to 3 quarters should be considered provisional, and the most recent quarter in particular will be subject to upward revisions in later releases. This is because orders for legally-aided representation in the criminal courts are generally granted at the magistrates' court initially, even for cases which subsequently move up to the Crown Court, and for some of these cases it takes time for the legal aid data to be updated to reflect the transfer to the Crown Court.

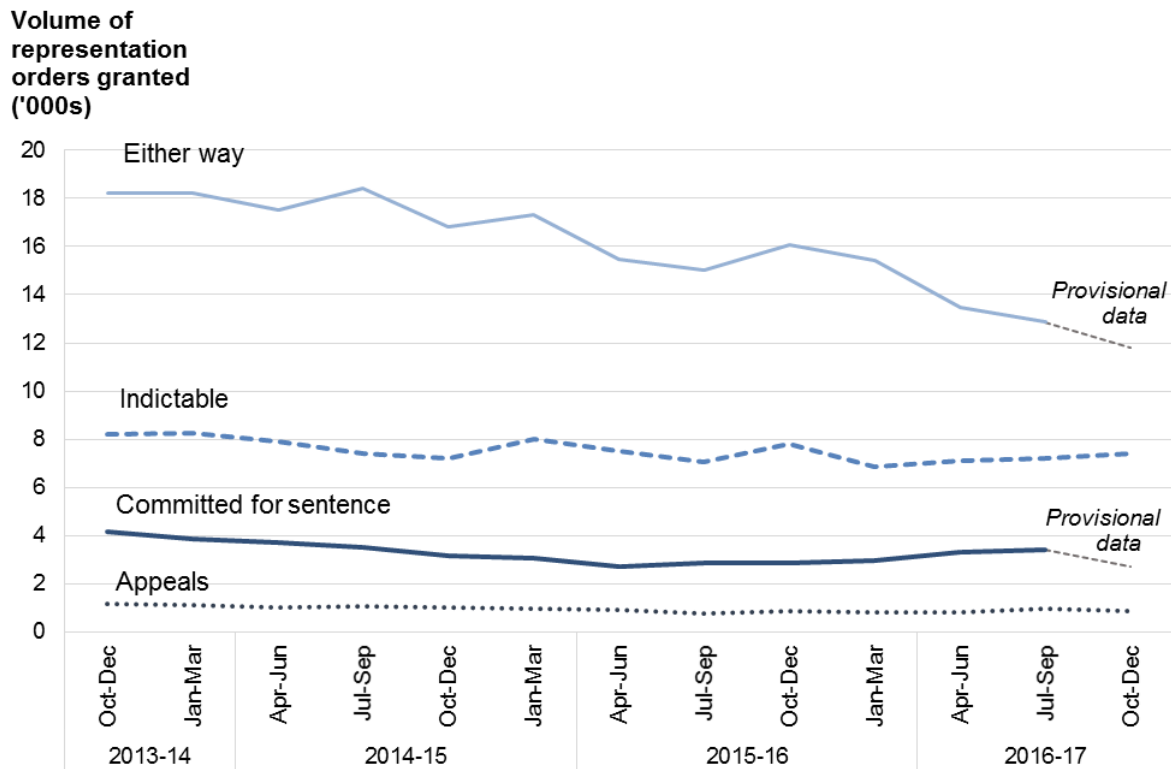

For more information on data quality and revisions see 'A User Guide to Legal Aid Statistics'.

Volumes of cases completed in the crime higher category have declined slightly over the last three years, and were down by 4% in the latest quarter compared with the same period of the previous year (see figure 10).

These volumes relate only indirectly to current trends in crime and new orders for representation; they are also driven by the number of sitting days and cases awaiting trial in Crown Courts, which are in turn managed in response to workloads and the volume of outstanding cases within the criminal justice system.

The value of payments for completed cases (figure 11) has decreased by less than volumes over the last year, and was 2% lower in Oct-Dec 2016 than in the same period of the previous year.

Figure 10: Number of cases completed within crime higher (Tables 4.2 – 4.4), Oct-Dec 2013 to Oct-Dec 2016

Note: High cost cases are case starts and both litigator and advocate case completions are included.

Figure 11: The value of completed crime higher cases (Table 4.2 – 4.4), Oct-Dec 2013 to Oct-Dec 2016

Note: High cost cases are case starts and both litigator and advocate case completions are included.

Very High Cost Cases (VHCCs)

VHCCs are those cases in which, if they were to proceed to trial, it is estimated would last more than 60 days of court time. In fact, these cases can span a number of years and, while they may involve relatively small numbers of cases or defendants, the number of related contracts with providers and the amount spent are high in comparison. For each VHCC opened there may be multiple defendants, each represented by a different provider with separate VHCC contracts. The LAA makes decisions in relation to authority to incur expenditure for expert reports and runs a High Cost Case contracting scheme seeking to limit expenditure on these complex cases.

Total expenditure on VHCCs from October to December 2016 was £6.1 million, a decrease of 4% compared to October to December 2015. Over the longer term however, VHCC costs have fallen due to a reduction in the proportion of cases classified as a VHCC due to the threshold being increased from 40 to 60 days on 1 April 2013, and also changes to fee rates paid. VHCCs now represent around 4% of the overall cost of legal aid in the Crown Court.

Civil legal aid

Many events and issues in people's lives which are not associated with crime, but which concern the rights and relations of private citizens, can also require legal assistance. These can be issues such as discrimination, dealt with through the telephone advice service, or a divorce with several court appearances.

Civil legal aid can be broadly categorised into legal help (see Tables 5.1 to 5.3) and civil representation (Tables 6.1 to 6.9). The nature of each form of service is explained in the diagram above. The first point of contact for a client of civil legal aid is usually legal help, which covers help via telephone, face-to-face with a solicitor or at Not-for-Profit centres.

Many of these matters will then extend into civil representation with full investigations undertaken or in-court representation given. However, under some circumstances a client may enter straight into civil representation. Legal Aid for representation at the Mental Health Tribunal or the Immigration & Asylum Tribunal is funded through controlled legal representation.

Legal aid for representation in other categories, or in higher courts for immigration and asylum or mental health, is funded through civil representation. Public funding is also available for family mediation, which is an alternative to settling family disputes through Court proceedings.

In the last quarter legal help new matter starts were 14% lower than in the same period of 2015. The implementation of the LASPO Act in April 2013 resulted in large reductions in legal help workload, with the overall trend having then levelled out at around one-third of pre-LASPO levels (see figure 12).

Unlike for civil representation, the decision to offer legal help or controlled legal representation to a client is generally devolved by the LAA to legal aid providers, who must apply means and merits tests to each potential client. LAA administrative systems do not therefore hold information on applications for legal help that are not granted.

The number of civil representation certificates granted in the last quarter was up 5% compared to the same period of the previous year. Workloads fell by a smaller proportion than legal help following the implementation of the LASPO Act, before having levelled out at around two-thirds of pre-LASPO levels (see figure 12).

We show grants in two ways. Grants are shown against the period in which the decision was made and recorded (see table 6.2 and 6.9) – these are referred to as ‘decision-based timing’. Grants are also shown against the period in which the application to which they relate was made – these are referred to as ‘application-based timing’ (shown alongside applications in table 6.1 and 6.8). Each way has advantages and disadvantages for the user: the former shows more accurately the timing of latest workload entering the system, while the latter enables the calculation of the proportion of applications in a given period that were granted. We would welcome further feedback from users on this addition via the contact details in Annex A.

The proportion of applications for civil representation that are granted has increased in recent years, with over 90% of all applications received over the last 12 months initially granted a certificate compared with around 83% prior to the introduction of LASPO (see table 6.1). This may be due to a change in the mix of areas of law involved. For example, the proportion of applications that relate to the special children act has increased; such applications are not subject to a means or merit test and almost all are granted.

Figure 12: Longer term trends in civil legal, legal help/controlled legal representation and civil representation, Oct-Dec 2009 to Oct-Dec 2016.

Civil legal aid by category of law (Tables 5.1 - 6.9)

A range of categories of law are covered within the scope of civil legal aid. Legal aid may be available for benefit appeals, debt (if your home is at risk), special educational needs, housing, discrimination issues, help and advice if you are a victim of domestic violence or issues involving a child being taken into care. Descriptions of the main categories are given under 'civil' in the glossary of the User guide to legal aid statistics.

Figure 13 shows the volume of completed work and the associated expenditure for each area of civil legal aid over the latest 12-month period, combining both legal help and civil representation. Although workloads are spread fairly evenly across categories, in expenditure terms family public law is by far the largest area of civil legal aid.

* MIAM and Mediation figures are not included in the family total
 Figures are for the 12 months to December 2016

Notes: These figures are a combination of legal help/controlled legal representation matters completed and civil representation certificates completed. They exclude housing possession court duty scheme, telephone operator service and civil representation where the cost is not borne by the LAA because the opponent has been ordered by the judge to pay the claimant's costs. Figures have been rounded so may not sum to totals.

Family

The category of family legal aid covers work on both private and public family law and includes work associated with the Children Act, domestic abuse, financial provision and family mediation.

Public family law is one of the most important components of legal aid, accounting for more than half of civil legal aid expenditure and more than a quarter of all legal aid expenditure. Public family cases may deal with issuing Care and Supervision Orders to protect vulnerable children and are primarily driven by the issuing of proceedings by individual Local Authorities. They are, for the majority, non-means and merits tested and the LAA has no control over the volume of these cases.

The LASPO Act removed many areas of civil law from the scope of legal aid, including some areas of private family law, resulting in a large decrease in family legal help workload. This now appears to have stabilised, although new matter starts in October to December 2016 were 15% lower than the same quarter of 2015 (figure 14).

Civil representation fell less sharply following LASPO, and the trend had then levelled out, but in October to December 2016 the number of certificates granted was up by 7% compared to the same period of the previous year. This increase was largely due to public family law, which makes up around three quarters of civil family workload. Although the number of certificates granted in this category was down 11% from a peak in the previous quarter, it was 9% higher than the same period of the previous year.

Some areas of family legal aid, in particular domestic violence and public family law, were not affected by scope changes in the LASPO Act and so did not show large decreases in volume when the Act was introduced. In public family law the civil representation workload has increased recently, with 9% more certificates granted in Special Children Act and other public law Children Act proceedings in October to December 2016 than in the same period of the previous year, although 11% fewer than in the previous quarter (table 6.2). Legal help matters completed in family public law increased by 1% over this period (table 5.2). Public family workloads in civil representation and legal help are higher now than before the LASPO Act was introduced.

Note: overall workload has been calculated by adding legal help matters started and civil representation certificated granted.

Applications for civil representation in private family law supported by evidence of domestic abuse

With effect from April 2013, the LASPO Act removed legal aid for most private family law including issues such as contact or divorce. However, legal aid remains available for such cases where there is a risk of domestic violence or child abuse. Applicants are granted legal aid funding for these cases if they can prove the incidence or risk of domestic violence or child abuse through a range of prescribed forms of evidence.

6.8 and 6.9 of the tables published alongside this report provide more detailed figures on this type of application. The majority of applications cite evidence relating to domestic violence. Most of the remainder cite evidence relating to child abuse, but for a minority of applications the evidence category is unknown or unclear from the data held for reporting purposes.

Similar to the figures on civil representation overall, numbers of grants for this type of application are presented both on the basis of decision-based timing (see table 6.9) and application-based timing (see table 6.8). See the introduction to the Civil legal aid section above for more information.

In October to December 2016, applications were up 21% compared to the same period of the previous year but down from the peak in April to June 2016. The number granted (on decision-based timing) was up 36% compared to the same period of 2015 (see figure 15).

The proportion of applications granted remained steady at around 70% from the inception of this type of application until the end of 2015, but has increased to over 75% in the 4 quarters since then (see table 6.8).

Between 1 April 2013 and 31 December 2016 the Legal Aid Agency received just over 30,000 applications. During this same period just over 21,000 certificates were granted.

Figure 15: Applications, and certificates granted (decision-based timing) for civil representation in private family law supported by evidence of domestic abuse, Oct-Dec 2013 to Oct-Dec 2016.

This quarter we have added a new table to show how much each category of evidence of domestic violence or child abuse is being used in these applications. Table 6.10 shows firstly how many pieces of each type of evidence were submitted with applications and, beneath, how many applications submitted each evidence type.

Protective injunctions were the most frequently-used evidence of domestic violence in October to December 2016, provided with 792 applications. A letter from social services was the most frequently-used evidence of child abuse, provided with 276 applications.

Family mediation

Family mediation (Tables 7.1 – 7.2) involves an independent and impartial professionally accredited mediator discussing problems with a divorcing or separating couple. The process is cheaper and quicker than using the courts and it also allows for a more flexible approach.

A mediation assessment, sometimes also known as a MIAM (Mediation Information and Assessment Meeting), is an initial meeting between one or both parties and a mediator. The aim of the meeting is to see if mediation could be used to resolve the issue, rather than going straight to court. The MIAM therefore takes place before the mediation sessions and must be undertaken for any individual wanting legal aid for this area of work.

The number of MIAMs fell sharply after the introduction of LASPO in April 2013, and numbers have fluctuated since then. They were down by 7% in the last quarter compared to the previous year (see figure 16) and currently stand at around half of pre-LASPO levels.

Parties can attend mediation assessment meetings alone, separately or together. The majority of couples attend assessment meetings separately (see table 7.1).

It is not possible from the data held by the LAA to track a family's progress through the various stages of mediation. While the number of mediations reaching each stage within a time period can be reported, it cannot be determined from a given set of assessments precisely what proportion of them led to starts or what proportion of starts led to agreements.

The number of mediation starts fell by a similar proportion to assessments following LASPO. After recovering somewhat, they have now fallen back to just over half of pre-LASPO levels.

Family mediation can be used to resolve issues to do with children or property and finance following divorce or separation, and the 'all issues' category describes mediations which deal with both areas. The children category consistently accounts for the majority of starts, comprising 64% of all mediation starts in the last year (this information is taken from the more detailed data published alongside this bulletin).

Mediations can either break down or result in an agreement. Like other areas of mediation, agreements fell following LASPO. They have since stabilised at just over half of pre-LASPO levels (see figure 16).

Mediations in the 'all issues' category can reach full agreement, where agreement is reached on all issues, or partial agreement, wherein an agreement has been reached on either children or property and finance, but not both. As such, successful agreements include both partial agreements and full agreements. Over the last year 62% of all mediation outcomes involved successful agreements. The rate of success varied between different categories of mediation, with the highest proportion of agreements (63%) in the children category (this information is taken from the more detailed data published alongside this bulletin).

Non-family

Following the implementation of the LASPO Act the non-family area of civil legal help has reduced and some areas of law have fallen out of scope.

Mental Health

Within mental health the majority of funding is spent on providing assistance to sectioned clients appealing the terms of their detention before a mental health tribunal. Although a distinct level of funding, controlled legal representation, which relates to representation at the Mental Health Tribunal, is here reported alongside legal help.

There is a statutory duty to provide advice and representation in these cases, and they are funded without reference to a client's means. The number of providers carrying out this work is small compared with some other categories. Providers have to travel to discrete NHS and private hospital locations to advise high priority detained clients. More information on mental health tribunals is available on the gov.uk website www.gov.uk/mental-health-tribunal/overview

Mental health workload fell 5% when comparing the latest quarter to the previous year (see figure 17).

Note: workload has been calculated by adding legal help / controlled legal representation matters started and civil representation certificated granted.

Immigration

The LASPO Act, which came into effect on 1 April 2013, made changes to the scope of legal aid for immigration law, but some areas remained in scope. These include asylum, immigration-detention, victims of trafficking or domestic violence, and judicial review. Although a distinct level of funding, controlled legal representation, which relates to representation at the Immigration and Asylum Tribunal at the First-tier-Tribunal (FTT) and Upper-tier-Tribunal (UTT), is reported alongside legal help.

The volume of legally aided immigration cases halved between April to June 2012 and April to June 2013.

This fall was primarily caused by the removal from scope under the LASPO Act of nationality and visit visas work. Although this category cannot be separately identified within data on civil representation, legal help and controlled legal representation data show that new matter starts for this type of work fell from more than 5,000 to just a few cases in each quarter following the introduction of the LASPO Act.

The workload that remains in the immigration category consists largely of asylum-related work. Having fallen by 40% over the 5 years to 2013-14, new matter starts in the asylum category stood 24% lower in the October to December 2016 quarter than in the same quarter of the previous year (see figure 18).

Note: workload has been calculated by adding legal help / controlled legal representation matters started and civil representation certificated granted.

Housing

In April 2013 the LASPO Act made changes to the scope of legal aid for housing issues, but some areas remain in scope. These include cases where there is serious disrepair or homelessness and possession proceedings.

The volume of legally-aided housing work halved between July to September 2012 and July to September 2013. The trend then fluctuated for around 18 months but since 2014 it has been falling, and in October to December 2016 there was a 12% decrease compared to the same quarter the previous year (see figure 19). Workload figures in this category of law are driven by legal help, which comprised 80% of overall housing legal aid volume in the latest quarter.

Note: workload calculated using legal help matters started and civil representation certificates granted.

Other non-family

Figure 20 below shows the civil legal aid workload in areas of law other than family, mental health, immigration and housing. These tend to have much lower volumes of work, with the majority of proceedings within these categories removed from the scope of legal aid by the introduction of the LASPO Act.

Civil legal aid subcategories

Legal help telephone service

The first point of contact for a client is usually the telephone operator service. This service diagnoses a client's case which, if it is potentially in scope and the client is financially eligible, is forwarded on to a specialist provider. Between January to December 2016, around 30,000 telephone operator cases were referred to the specialist telephone service for advice, where a specialist then assessed whether the matter should be started, or instead determined (for example because it is subsequently deemed out of scope, lacks merits or the client has failed to provide evidence).

The specialist advice service provides advice for debt, discrimination, education, family and housing matters. People seeking legally-aided advice in debt, discrimination or education must do so via the telephone gateway service initially (unless they meet certain specific exemptions).

Figure 21 below shows the number of specialist provider completed matters, alongside other legal help face to face completed matters. In the period from January to December 2016, 26% of completed matters in these categories of law were handled by the specialist advice service.

	Specialist telephone providers	Other Legal Help	Total
Debt	397	86	483
Discrimination	1,348	-	1,348
Education	1,518	22	1,540
Family	3,790	32,168	35,958
Housing	12,477	23,774	36,251

Specialist telephone cases which resulted in a matter being started are included within the overall legal help figures in Tables 5.1 – 5.3.

Telephone operator service figures are currently under review. Figures will be published next quarter that reflect more accurately the nature of how the service operates.

Judicial reviews

Legal aid for judicial reviews takes the form of civil representation and can relate to any category of civil law. Applications for legal aid for judicial reviews are made by those requiring assistance in challenging a government decision.

Of all civil representation applications granted, fewer than 4,000 a year relate to judicial review. The number granted in October to December 2016 was 28% lower than in the same quarter in 2015. Over one third (37%) of judicial reviews were for immigration cases and nearly 30% for public law (see figure 22).

The CSV file of more detailed figures published alongside this document additionally includes figures for applications, applications granted, and outcomes (showing whether the case is considered to be a judicial review).

Exceptional case funding

Under some circumstances clients can get civil legal aid even though their case is not in scope. This is known as Exceptional Case Funding (ECF) and these cases are dealt with by an ECF team within the LAA. See Tables 8.1 and 8.2 for detailed figures on ECF.

The ECF scheme was introduced from 1 April 2013 as part the Legal Aid Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Act 2012 (LASPO).

An ECF application for civil legal services is made where a case falls outside the scope of civil legal aid but the client or conducting solicitor believes there is a requirement to provide funding. This is because failure to do so would be a breach of the Human Rights Act 1998, or any rights of the individual to the provision of legal services that are enforceable EU rights.

An ECF determination can generally only be granted if:

- the means criteria are met (this relates to the client's financial eligibility), and
- the standard legal aid merits criteria are met (this relates to the likelihood of the client being successful), and
- the exceptional case criteria detailed above are met.

There is discretion to waive the means eligibility limits relating to inquests if, in all the circumstances, it would not be reasonable to expect the family to bear the full costs of legal assistance at the inquest. This will depend on factors such as the history of the case, the applicant's assessed disposable income and capital and the estimated costs of providing representation.

More information on the means and merits criteria can be found on the gov.uk website www.gov.uk/work-out-who-qualifies-for-civil-legal-aid

Unlike other legal aid applications, clients can make ECF applications directly to the LAA. If the ECF application sent directly by the client is assessed as being eligible for ECF funding, their application may be granted subject to them finding a legal aid provider to act for them. As a result of litigation discussed later in this chapter, a client can now be awarded a grant straight away whereas prior to 27 July 2015 this decision was only preliminary (termed a positive preliminary view or 'PPV').

More information on ECF and the procedure for applying as an individual can be found on the gov.uk website www.gov.uk/legal-aid-apply-for-exceptional-case-funding

Applications

There were 441 applications for ECF received between October and December 2016, a rise of 43% compared to the same period in 2015. 383 (87%) of these were new applications (see Figure 23).

The remaining 58 applications were re-submitted for review; this is where a case has previously been rejected or refused ECF funding and then resubmitted by the client for reconsideration. These 58 applications also include reviews of refused amendments; amendments are not included in the number of new applications as doing so would double-count the granting of the initial application.

In previous bulletins we have published figures on the number of working days, however, due to data quality concerns we have removed these figures from the bulletin. One of the key issues affecting this decision is the way in which we monitor those applications that are put on hold while further information is requested, in particular in those cases where the application is put on hold more than once.

Figure 23: Volume of ECF applications received, new or review, Oct-Dec 13 to Oct-Dec 16.

This quarter, 70 ECF applications (16%) were made directly by the client, which is the more than double the proportion this time last year. The increase in direct client applications may be due to the ECF application form being simplified in response to a judicial review (mentioned later in this chapter).

Determinations

Applications that are not withdrawn by the client can receive three different determinations: rejected, refused or granted. For an application to be granted it must meet the three criteria detailed at the beginning of the chapter. Rejected applications do not progress to being assessed against the means and merits criteria. This will be because they are either:

- in scope (eligible) for legal aid,
- an incomplete/premature application, or
- “other” which encompasses issues such as the timeliness of submission and eligibility for review

Figures on these refusal and rejection reasons can be found in the more detailed data file.

Of the 441 ECF applications received between October and December 2016, 413 (93%) had been determined by the LAA as of 28 February 2016. Of these, 58% (240) were granted, 21% (85) were refused and 19% (79) rejected (see figure 24).

28 applications were awaiting assessment as at 28 February, and a further 26 applications from earlier quarters also still await a determination.

The number and proportion of ECF applications being granted was generally increasing between when the scheme began and the end of 2015. In 2016 the proportion of grants had dipped, but has increased again in the last quarter.

Changes in relation to court judgements

On 13 June 2014, judgment was handed down in the case of Gudanaviciene and others v Director of Legal Aid Casework [2014] EWHC 1840 (Admin). The claimants, who were each seeking to challenge various immigration decisions, argued that they should have been granted legal aid under the exceptional case funding regime. The court found that the level required to justify legal aid was set too high and as a result the threshold for meeting the ECF merits criteria for immigration cases was lowered.

On 15 July 2015, judgement was also handed down in the case of IS; a judicial review challenging the operation of the ECF scheme. The court found that there was “unacceptable risk” that the ECF scheme was not able to provide legal aid in those instances where failure to do so would be a breach of the Human Rights Act 1998, or any rights of the individual to the provision of legal services that are enforceable EU rights, and that the Civil Legal Aid (Merits Criteria) Regulations 2013 were unlawful. As a result, applications with a ‘poor’ or ‘borderline’ prospect of success had to be considered for funding.

This judgement was appealed at the Court of Appeal in March 2016. In May 2016, the court found that the LAA regulations were lawful, contrary to the initial judgement. Consequently, from this date, applications with a ‘poor’ or ‘borderline’ prospect of success no longer need to be considered for funding. However, the volume of applications assessed to have a poor or borderline prospects of success is generally small so this may have little impact.

Applications and determinations by category of law

Of the ECF applications received between October and December 2016, immigration (57%), inquest (16%), and family (13%) remained the most requested categories of law (table 8.2).

The impact of the first court judgement discussed above can be seen in the figures; the proportion of immigration applications being granted has increased sharply since around Apr-Jun 2015.

Annual updates

Statistics on the following topics are updated on an annual basis, in the Legal Aid Statistics bulletin published following the final (January to March) quarter of the financial year.

Appeals and representations

This section of legal aid statistics contains figures on:

- Funding appeals – these are appeals against determinations made by the LAA. They include reviews and full appeals against determinations on whether a client qualifies for legal aid, scope decisions or the extent of funding granted for a case.
- Representations – when legal aid funding is granted to an individual, their opponents or other third parties may make representations against the grant of legal aid or continuation of funding. Representations may be made concerning the legal merits of the case, the financial means of the applicant, or both.

This section is updated annually as only partial data is available on a quarterly basis. The most recent edition of this section can be found here:

www.gov.uk/government/statistics/legal-aid-statistics-quarterly-january-to-march-2016

Legal aid providers

Legal aid services in England and Wales are delivered through solicitor firms, Not-for-Profit organisations, telephone operators and barristers who are contracted by the LAA to do legal aid work.

The annual provider section presents information on the number of provider offices who have completed work and received associated payments from the LAA in any given quarter or financial year.

The main document includes commentary and maps, and tables 9.1 to 9.4 present summary figures. A CSV file of more detailed data published alongside gives, at the provider office level, the name and category of each provider, the volume of each type of legal aid work completed in each quarterly period and the associated expenditure.

The most recent edition of this annual section can be found here:

www.gov.uk/government/statistics/legal-aid-statistics-quarterly-january-to-march-2016

In December 2015 a paper was published presenting the findings from research undertaken by a research and data working group formed as a collaboration between the Bar Council, Criminal Bar Association, Legal Aid Agency and Ministry of Justice. The aim of the paper was to improve knowledge of the demographic composition of junior barristers (all barristers excluding QCs) receiving legal aid fee income. The paper can be found here:

www.gov.uk/government/publications/composition-and-remuneration-of-junior-barristers-under-the-advocates-graduated-fee-scheme-in-criminal-legal-aid

Clients and provider characteristics

This section of legal aid statistics shows summary figures on the breakdown of clients in each main area of legal aid by gender, disability status, ethnicity and age and compares these with the England and Wales population as a whole, using the latest population estimates from the Office for National Statistics.

The most recent edition of this annual section can be found here:

www.gov.uk/government/statistics/legal-aid-statistics-quarterly-january-to-march-2016

Other criminal legal aid

This section covers areas of criminal legal aid that are not covered in the crime lower and crime higher categories. These include:

Discretionary and legacy claims

This is legal aid in the Crown Court covering discretionary and legacy claims related to graduated fee schemes. These claims include:

- discretionary claims for costs under a Representation Order, for example litigators' claims for confiscation proceedings, advocates' claims for committals for sentence and appeals to the Crown Court, and breaches of Crown Court orders;
- proceedings predating the various fixed fee schemes (legacy cases) or falling outside the scope of the formal schemes.

The Higher Courts: Court of Appeal and Supreme Court

Legal aid for the higher courts is expenditure paid by the Court of Appeal, Senior courts cost office and Supreme Court, and is administered by those courts. The grant of legal aid is also determined by the courts, for an Interest of Justice test only as there are no means tests for these areas.

Central Funds

This category encompasses arrangements to meet costs in a variety of scenarios that are not covered by the main legal aid schemes. Some aspects of these are administered by the LAA and others by Her Majesty's Courts and Tribunals Service. These scenarios include:

- the reimbursement of defendants acquitted after privately funding their defence lawyers. Payments from central funds are normally triggered when a judge grants a Defence Cost Order (DCO) for legal aid at Magistrates, Crown or higher courts;
- lawyers required where a defendant is unrepresented but where the court decides that the defendant must not themselves be allowed to cross-examine a vulnerable witness, with cases of domestic violence being typical. This situation is covered by the terms of section 38 of the Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999;
- court interpreters and translators, and court intermediaries;
- reimbursement for successful private prosecutions;
- reimbursement of some of the costs of attending magistrates' court for witnesses, experts and defendants.

NATIONAL STATISTICS STATUS

National Statistics status means that official statistics meet the highest standards of trustworthiness, quality and public value.

All official statistics should comply with all aspects of the Code of Practice for Official Statistics. They are awarded National Statistics status following an assessment by the UK Statistics Authority's regulatory arm. The Authority considers whether the statistics meet the highest standards of Code compliance, including the value they add to public decisions and debate.

It is a producer's responsibility to maintain compliance with the standards expected of National Statistics, and to improve its statistics on a continuous basis. If a producer becomes concerned about whether its statistics are still meeting the appropriate standards, it should discuss its concerns with the Authority promptly. National Statistics status can be removed at any point when the highest standards are not maintained, and reinstated when standards are restored.
