

[REDACTED]

From: [REDACTED]@gmail.com> on behalf of Eclips Corp (UK)
Sent: 13 November 2017 17:31
To: industrialstrategy
Subject: In addition

PS: I forgot to add a further recommendation that whilst the civil service do their best to run the IPO dept. and support its customers, if there is a dispute there comes a time when the civil servants should seek the help of internal lawyers. In my case which we lost I only found out that I was receiving advice from a civil servant whilst the large company I was fighting had the benefit of IP lawyers.

So I would recommend that before cases go to appeal, then for unclear disputes there should be the benefit of any case being looked at by an IPO office.

Again in my case the IPO office civil servant dealing with my case wrongly interpreted the meaning of "without prejudice".

[REDACTED]
Eclips Corporation (UK) Ltd.

This email has been checked for viruses by Avast antivirus software.
<https://www.avast.com/antivirus>