MOD Information Management Report: 2018

The National Archives is required to report on the progress of the transition to the 20-year rule to the Secretary of State for Digital, Culture, Media and Sport. This includes annual reporting to ministers and transparent publishing of relevant data on The National Archives' website.

To improve transparency, the Information Management Report asks for numbers of records due for review, transfer or disposal in the current year (2018), predicted next year (2019) and legacy data (pre-1993). This will include both records covered by Retention Instruments and those not covered by Retention Instruments. This report includes volumes due for processing. It does not include records that may be placed in local places of deposit or digital assets.

Reported record holdings and transfer plans are published on The National Archives' website.

Records at (A1) are predominantly Defence estate maps and plans and geographic reference material, with those at (A2) being World War Two RAF casualty packs. Records at (B1) are predominantly service personnel records with a year of birth of pre-1902 and some geographic reference material. Those at (B2) are also World War Two RAF casualty packs, but these have been reviewed and selected for transfer to TNA. Records at C1 are geographic reference material that is awaiting destruction and some administrative records that would normally have been destroyed, but destruction has been put on hold pending further review due to the on-going Independent Inquiry into Child Sexual Abuse.
