Explanations

What did any relevant EU law do before exit day?

- 2.2 To ensure that these species are traceable for the purposes of disease control the relevant EU law sets out how these species must be identified, what records their keepers must maintain, how they must report their animal's movements, and how central competent authorities must record this information on central databases.

Why is it being changed?

- 2.3 Minor and technical changes made by the instrument are necessary to ensure that the retained EU legislation continues to operate effectively. The changes made to ensure that it operates effectively include the removal of references to the "EU", "Union" and "the Commission" and their replacement with terms such as "the United Kingdom" and "the Appropriate Minister". It also removes references to requirements to report to, or notify to the EU Commission information on actions taken to implement the EU legislation – such as the results of on farm compliance inspections.

What will it now do?

- 2.4 The instrument will ensure that legislation that underpins the traceability of livestock continues to operate effectively in the UK after we leave the EU.

7. Policy background

What is being done and why?

“In my view the Livestock (Records, Identification and Movement) (Amendment) (EU Exit) Regulations 2018 should be subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament (i.e. the negative procedure).

This is the case because this instrument addresses only technical deficiencies in the retained EU Legislation that will arise from withdrawal.”
