Dear Mr Other

The purpose of this letter is to give you:

- Proof of entitlement to your benefit
- Information about Disability Living Allowance rates
- Information about changes you must tell us about
- Important information about how Disability Living Allowance is being replaced by a new disability benefit called Personal Independence Payment. There is more information at the end of this letter – please read it carefully.

Please read all this information carefully.

Keep this letter safe because it is proof of your entitlement to benefit.

Disability Living Allowance Entitlement

You are entitled to:

middle rate care component for help with personal care until 28/5/13

higher rate mobility component for help with getting around until 28/5/13

Disability Living Allowance Rates

Benefit rates are reviewed every year.

How much money we can pay you

The current weekly rate is

Care Component: middle	£60.00
Mobility Component: higher	£40.00
Total each week	£100.00

The weekly rate from 08/04/2013 will be

Care Component: middle	£63.25
Mobility Component: higher	£41.75
Total each week	£105.00

If you are paid every four weeks, this amounts to £420.00 every four weeks at the revised rate. The payment you receive in April may be less than £420.00, if it includes payments at the current rate and the revised rate.

Motability and other adjustments

Please note the amounts referred to above are before any deductions towards the Motability Scheme on your behalf, or for any other reason related to where you are living, for which we have previously notified you.

How you will get your money

We will continue to make payment via your normal method of payment. If you do not receive your payment by the expected date, please contact us on the number at the top of this letter.

Please note - We may look at your award again from time to time to make sure you are getting the right amount of Disability Living Allowance. This means that if the amount of help you need has changed, your award may increase, decrease or stop altogether. If there has been no change in the amount of help you need then your award will stay the same.

If you are a resident of a care home and eligible for the DLA mobility component but not receiving it because you are funded by the NHS, you may now be entitled to the payment following a court judgement.

The Changes you must tell us about

These are just some of the changes that may happen to you.

You must write straight away if any of these changes happen to you. They may make a difference to how much money you get or how long you get it for. Remember if you are writing to us for someone else, you must tell us about the changes that happen to them.

Your illness or disability

We must know if anything you told us changes about how your illness or disability affects you. You must tell us if things get easier or more difficult for you. And you must tell us if you need less help or more help. If your doctor tells you your illness or disability will last for a longer time or a shorter time, you must tell us that as well.

Dialysis

You must tell us if the amount of time you spend having dialysis changes. If the type of dialysis changes, you must tell us that as well.

Transplant

You must tell us when you have had a transplant.

Change of address

You must tell us straight away if you change your address.

Hospital, care home or similar establishment

By hospital we mean a hospital or hospice.

By care home or similar establishment we mean

- a care home, or residential hospital in England or Wales
- a care home service or independent health care service in Scotland or
- somewhere similar

If you are getting Disability Living Allowance and you go into hospital, a care home or similar establishment, you must tell us the date you go in.

If you are already in hospital, a care home or similar establishment, you must tell us the date you come out.

You must tell us if the local council start paying for you to live in a care home or independent hospital in England or Wales or a care home service or independent health care service in Scotland. Even if you pay the council back, or they do not pay all the cost, you must still tell us.

You must tell us if the local council stop paying for you to live in a care home or independent hospital in England or Wales or a care home service or independent health care service in Scotland.

Special school or college.

You must tell us if you go to stay in a special school or college or somewhere like this and tell us the date you go in.

Foster care or local authority care

If you are the parent or guardian of a child who is getting Disability Living Allowance, you must tell us if they go into foster care or local authority care. If payments are by cheque you must send their cheque to us straight away.

Leaving the country

You must tell us if you are going to leave Great Britain for more than 4 weeks. Great Britain is England, Scotland and Wales. Please tell us which country you are going to and how long you will be staying there.

Prison

You must tell us if you go into prison and if paid by cheque you must send any cheque to us straight away.

If someone dies

You must tell us if someone getting Disability Living Allowance dies. If paid by cheque you must send any cheque to us straight away.

These are not all the changes we must know about. There may be other changes that you want to tell us about. If you are not sure what to tell us, just ask our advice.

When you write to us, tell us:

- your name and address
- your National Insurance (NI) number. If you are writing to us for someone else, tell us their name and their National Insurance (NI) number
- what the change is
- the date the change happened or the date the change is due to happen.

Please continue reading this letter for more important information about changes to Disability Living Allowance that may affect the benefits you receive.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION - please read carefully

A new benefit called Personal Independence Payment will begin to replace Disability Living Allowance for disabled people aged 16 to 64 from 8 April 2013.

You don't need to contact us about Personal Independence Payment now. This letter will explain how we are planning to introduce the new benefit and help you understand how these changes might affect you.

What is Personal Independence Payment?

Personal Independence Payment is designed to help disabled people live more independently and support those with the greatest need. The new benefit is to help people meet the extra costs that come from having a long-term health condition or disability. By long-term condition we mean ill-health or disability that is expected to last 12 months or longer.

Personal Independence Payment will be made up of two parts (components), a Daily Living component and a Mobility component. Each component will have two rates - standard and enhanced. Personal Independence Payment isn't affected by income or savings, it's not taxable and people can get it if they're in or out of work.

The new benefit will target help on those that need it the most.

How will we decide if you can get Personal Independence Payment?

Entitlement to Personal Independence Payment will be based on the effect a long-term health condition or disability has on your daily life. To make sure we have a clear understanding of this, you'll be asked to complete a form where you can describe how your health condition or disability affects you. You'll also be asked to include any supporting evidence you have and to tell us who might be able to advise us on your situation. Most people will be asked to attend a face-to-face consultation with a health professional as part of their claim but this may not be needed.

We'll use all this information to decide if Personal Independence Payment can be awarded. Many people claiming Disability Living Allowance will continue to be entitled to Personal Independence Payment, and you may get more, the same or less benefit than you currently get.

If you're awarded Personal Independence Payment your award will be reviewed over time to make sure it remains correct and continues to help meet your needs.

How might I be affected?

If you're aged 16 to 64 on 8 April 2013 then you'll be affected by the introduction of Personal Independence Payment, even if you get an indefinite or lifetime award of Disability Living Allowance.

Personal Independence Payment is being introduced in stages over a number of years. That means most people who receive Disability Living Allowance now will not be affected in the near future. But it is important that you know how and when you might be affected.

- If there are changes in how your health condition or disability affects you on or after 7 October 2013 then you'll be asked to make a claim for Personal Independence Payment. When you report the change of needs we'll explain what will happen next.
- If your existing Disability Living Allowance award is due to end, or be reviewed, on or after 7 October 2013, and you've not already received a renewal letter about your Disability Living Allowance, then you'll be asked to make a claim for Personal Independence Payment. We'll write to you in plenty of time if you need to take any action. You don't need to contact us now.
- Everyone else in receipt of Disability Living Allowance will not be contacted until 2015 or later, unless you report a change in how your health condition or disability affects you, or if your award is due to end as above. We'll write to you in plenty of time to explain. You don't need to contact us now.

If, after we contact you about claiming Personal Independence Payment, you decide to apply, your Disability Living Allowance will continue to be paid until we make a decision about your claim. If you decide not to apply for Personal Independence Payment, your Disability Living Allowance will end.

Young people

These changes do not affect children in receipt of Disability Living Allowance. They'll continue to receive it until they reach 16 when they become eligible for Personal Independence Payment.

- If the young person turns 16 before 7 October 2013 then they'll continue to be able to claim Disability Living Allowance. But in the same way as other people receiving Disability Living Allowance, they'll be asked to claim Personal Independence Payment at some point over the next few years. You can find more information about this above.
- If the young person is due to turn 16 on or after 7 October 2013 then they'll need to decide if they want to claim PIP. We'll write to them and their parent / guardian in plenty of time to explain how to apply for Personal Independence Payment, when they need to claim by and what will happen to their Disability Living Allowance.

If you are 65 years and over

- People aged 65 or over on, or before, 8 April 2013 don't need to claim Personal Independence Payment. You'll continue to get Disability Living Allowance, as long as your circumstances don't change.
- If you reach 65 after 8 April 2013 then you'll not be contacted until 2015 or later. However, if there are changes in how your health condition or disability affects you, or you reach the end of your Disability Living Allowance award before then, you'll be asked to claim Personal Independence Payment at that point. You can find out more about this above.

People receiving Attendance Allowance will not be affected by the introduction of Personal Independence Payment. They'll continue to receive Attendance Allowance.
