

Freedom of Information Act 2000

Thank you for your enquiry of 30 March 2021, which we have considered under the terms of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 (the FOI Act).

We are sending you an updated version of this outcome letter to reflect the fact that, following further searches, some additional information within the scope of your request has been found. We apologise for the original oversight.

You asked for the following information:

"Please can you tell me how many times David Cameron has contacted HM Treasury Ministers or the Chancellor regarding Greensill Capital since 1st January 2020. I would also like copies of all cases of this correspondence. Please include any written correspondence or recorded phone calls on private phones that refer to Greensill Capital and government business."

Following a search of our records, we can confirm that HM Treasury does hold information within the scope of your request.

HM Treasury has released a range of information relating to this matter both proactively and in response to FOI requests. In the interests of transparency, we can confirm that David Cameron reached out informally by telephone to the Chancellor, the Economic Secretary, and the Financial Secretary on the matter of Greensill's access to the CCFF.

The matter was referred to the relevant officials and, following appropriate consultations as outlined in HM Treasury's published materials on this issue, the request from Greensill regarding a change to the Covid Corporate Finance Facility for supply chain finance providers was turned down. During the process this was communicated to Greensill by officials and, in parallel, by the Chancellor and the Economic Secretary to David Cameron, with guidance from officials.

The Chancellor has also recently written to Anneliese Dodds, setting out a number of details in relation to HM Treasury's interactions with Greensill. This letter can be found here:

<https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/a-letter-from-the-chancellor-in-response-to-anneliese-dodds>

Some of the information in scope of your request has recently been released in response to a previous FOI request. To the extent that the information is now published and reasonably accessible to you, section 21 of the FOI Act does not require us to separately provide that information to you. Instead, I have provided links to where that information can be found:

<https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/response-to-a-freedom-of-information-request-on-greensill>

Redacted versions of the remaining information in scope of your request have been shared alongside this letter.

As noted above, following our initial response to your request, we have found further information within the scope of your request. This is now included in the document shared with you.

Some redactions have been made to these documents under the FOI Act, as set out below:

Section 35(1)(a) - formulation or development of government policy: this is a qualified exemption and, as such, we considered the balance of public interest in disclosure and non-disclosure of the information.

We recognise there is an inherent public interest in transparency and accountability of public authorities and that there is a broad public interest in furthering understanding of the issues with which public authorities deal. Balanced against this is the public interest in protecting the integrity of the policy making process and the Government's ability to freely discuss policies with complex trade-offs is not hindered. We consider that the balance of the public interest falls to protecting this information given its release would likely have a detrimental impact on the ongoing formulation and development of policy.

Section 41(1) – now section 21

Insofar as information previously withheld under section 41(1) has since been placed into the public domain by the Treasury Select Committee, that information is now exempt under section 21 of the FOI Act, being information reasonably accessible to an applicant. The information can be accessed via the link below:

<https://committees.parliament.uk/work/1193/lessons-from-greensill-capital/publications/3/correspondence/>

Section 40(2) - third party personal data: Section 40(2) of the FOI Act, by virtue of section 40(3)(a)(i) provides an absolute exemption for third party personal data, where disclosure would contravene any of the data protection principles set out in Article 5 of the General Data Protection Regulation. The first data protection principle requires the disclosure of third-party personal data to be lawful, fair and transparent. We believe that releasing the information would breach the first data protection principle, since it would be unlawful and unfair to release the information.

If you have any queries about this letter, please contact us. Please quote the reference number above in any future communications.

Yours sincerely

Information Rights Unit

Copyright notice

Most documents HM Treasury supplies in response to a Freedom of Information request, including this letter, continue to be protected by Crown copyright. This is because they will have been produced by Government officials as part of their work. You are free to use these documents for your information, for any non-commercial research you may be doing and for news reporting. Any other re-use, for example commercial publication, will require the permission of the copyright holder. Crown copyright is managed by The National Archives and you can find details on the arrangements for re-using Crown copyright material at: <http://www.nationalarchives.gov.uk/information-management/re-using-public-sector-information/uk-government-licensing-framework/crown-copyright/>