Section 1: Governance and Leadership

Positive and visible Board level support for protective security is vital to demonstrate to staff the value placed on personnel and people security policies and procedures.

Strong security leadership, at all levels across your organisation will:

- Ensure consistency and clear lines of responsibility for the management of security risk
- Foster a multi-disciplinary approach to countering the insider threat
- Ensure proportionate and cost-effective use of resources
- Provide essential management information for the purposes of security planning and people management
- Provide a strong example that both develops and underpins an effective security culture.

Section 3: Pre-Vetting Screening

Pre-vetting screening comprises the procedures involved in deciding an individual's suitability to hold NSV. This is not limited to new joiners, but also individuals already employed by an organisation who are moving into a role that requires NSV. All individuals must have been subject to BPSS checks and have a clear requirement to access classified material (Secret and above) prior to vetting sponsorship. This should include permanent, temporary and contract workers in the IPSA organisation and its network.

Section 5: Monitoring & Assessment of Clearance-holders

Monitoring and assessment is an essential element of good personnel security. An holistic approach to protective monitoring is advocated, where information about Personnel Security risks are brought together under a single point of accountability and governance, to ensure a transparent, legal, ethical and proportionate protective monitoring capability. This includes conducting internal trend analysis activities to identify areas of vulnerability. This section is focused on the output of NSV clearance review activities.

Section 6: Investigation and Disciplinary Practices

Many organisations will at some point need to carry out some kind of internal investigation into a member of staff. The primary duty for an investigator is to establish the true facts, whilst adhering to appropriate HR policy and employment laws.

With correct procedures in place employees who understand policies and regulations, and competent trained investigative staff, your organisation is better equipped to avoid these pitfalls and maintain trust.

In addition to investigating an insider act your organisation needs to have a risk management process in place which manages the consequences of the act and a process in place that helps you:

- Identify and analyse the root cause of the incident;
- Identify the appropriate disciplinary actions or interventions that need to be undertaken;
- Assess the effectiveness of current control measures in place;
- Identify gaps in practice and;
- Develop more effective control measures.

Section 7: Security Culture and Behavioural Change

A good security culture in your organisation is an essential component of a protective security regime and helps to mitigate against insider threats and external people threats (such as hostile reconnaissance).

Security culture is the set of values, shared by everyone in an organisation, which determine how people are expected to think about and approach security, and is essential to an effective personnel and people security regime.

The benefits of an effective security culture include:

- employees are engaged with, and take responsibility for, security issues
- levels of compliance with protective security measures increase
- the risk of security incidents and breaches is reduced by encouraging employees to think and act in more security conscious ways

employees are more likely to report behaviours/activities of concern
