

I write to you in response to the impending changes regarding funeral directors displaying their fees on their websites.

Firstly I think this is a great idea. Certainly something that needs to be done in the modern world.

My biggest worry is what I have seen so far from correspondence we have had from the NAFD. The layout is what concerns me, from what I have seen being proposed looks complicated and not very user friendly. (I enclose the document we received from the NAFD).

Please see an example of my current fee structure. I understand that certain things may need to be added when the time comes but the format is better to read than what has been proposed.

David Button price list