Dear Lord Goldsmith

The Aspinall Foundation has a unique opportunity to purchase a property in the eastern cape province of South Africa that would unlock a massive ecological footprint for reintroduced elephants, cheetah, black rhino and other indigenous species. This land purchase would be the beginning of a project to expand a web of protected corridors joining Camdeboo National Park, Mountain Zebra National Park and Addo Elephant National Park to create a mega reserve, opening up the historic migratory routes of elephants and other species in the area.

I have attached a background summary about the reserve in question and wondered if there would be any possibility of a partnership with the UK government or available grants that we could apply for to help us kickstart this ambitious project?

Kind regards
