Subject: My support to regulate and stop the monopoly of browser on iOS/iPadOS

Greetings.

I've been a web developer for the past two decades and off late my job has been extremely painful since I have to deal with many of the browser bugs and lack of support of web standards in Safari on iOS. Being the developer of one of the most popular websites, I couldn't use Service Workers to enhance user experience on iOS because of Safari's buggy implementation, so I had to resort to disabling the feature based on user-agent detection.

I can't usefully ask iOS users to choose another browser because Apple's App Store rule 2.5.6 requires them to use Apple's engine. This makes development more costly and painful for not just me, but all the web developers like me.
