Dear Matt,

It is extremely disappointing that despite the numerous voicemails, emails from both myself and our consultant that you have failed to provide any meaningful response or even acknowledged our contact.

You are supposed to be the regulatory body for determining applications for an EA permit. You were assigned to this case specifically in order to speed things up as the EA had purposely been very awkward towards determining our application, it is clear to any outsider that the EA have a motive which is driven driven by someone in a senior position who is advising you and the narrative is to stop our scheme from going ahead despite the fact that We have met all criteria to obtain such a permit numerous times and this has also been further confirmed by a previous inspector. Unfortunately the system doesn't work like this where you feel that you can in effect make the rules up as you go along.

In spite of this, your continuation of delay tactics, tandem working with the local authority and putting words into each others mouths in order to halt our progress is not only pre meditated and spiteful, but also very unreasonable.

To that note this is my final email to you before the deadline of close of business this Thursday 23rd March, we have added a further ten days onto your previous deadline as a grace period to give the EA opportunity to do the right thing, at this point all conversation will cease and we will proceed immediately to an appeal. No doubt this will suit your needs and achieve your goals to delay us even further but we will be able to demonstrate that we have done our best to avoid this happening and placing more burden and cost onto the system and the taxpayer, we will then seek to recover all costs from the EA as a direct result of their ongoing unreasonable behaviour.

There can be nothing left to consider and all evidence is in front of you if you choose to look at it.

I do hope that this email which is a final attempt to ask the EA to do the right thing and make the right decision without prejudice and provide us with our environmental permit thus allowing us to complete the works and avoid any further enforcement action.

Kind regards,

Simon Nelson
