

Voter registration form for a British citizen living overseas

 Go online

It's easy to fill in this form online at gov.uk/register-to-vote.

Am I eligible to register?

To register as an overseas voter you must be:

- a British citizen living overseas
- aged 16 or over (although you won't be able to vote until you are 18).

You must also have been registered to vote in the UK or been resident (lived) in the UK before.

Which UK elections can I vote in?

As an overseas voter, you are eligible to vote in UK Parliament elections.

How to register to vote

- 1 Fill in this voter registration form.
- 2 Make sure you sign the declaration.
- 3 Return your completed form and any relevant evidence to your electoral registration office. You can find their address and more information at electoralcommission.org.uk/voter.
- 4 Problems with the form? Contact your electoral registration office if you need help understanding or completing this form – or if you need this form in large print or in another format.

Register to vote as soon as possible, or it may be too late to vote in the next election.

If you need help filling in this form please contact your electoral registration office.

Your nationality

We may need additional evidence about your nationality or we may check your nationality against government records.

Your date of birth

If you don't know your date of birth please give the date you put on official documents (for example, your passport or driving licence) or tick one of the boxes. Your date of birth identifies you and confirms your eligibility to vote.

Supporting documents

The documents in list C can be the same type. For example, you can provide four bank statements from different months.

The open register

There are two registers. Why?

Using information received from the public, registration officers keep two registers – the electoral register and the open register (also known as the edited register).

The electoral register lists the names and addresses of everyone who is registered to vote in public elections. The register is used for electoral purposes, such as making sure only eligible people can vote. It is also used for other limited purposes specified in law, such as:

- detecting crime (e.g. fraud)
- calling people for jury service
- checking credit applications.

The open register is an extract of the electoral register, but is not used for elections. It can be bought by any person, company or organisation. For example, it is used by businesses and charities to confirm name and address details. Your name and address will be included in the open register unless you ask for them to be removed. Removing your details from the open register does not affect your right to vote.

If you are concerned that having your name or address on the register may affect your safety, there could be other options available to you.

In certain circumstances, you can register without your name and address showing on the register.

To find out more, please contact your electoral registration office. You can find their contact details and more information at electoralcommission.org.uk/voter.

You can find out more information about both registers and how they may be used at gov.uk/register-to-vote.

Privacy statement

The Electoral Registration Officer is the Controller. Their lawful basis for collecting the personal information in this application form is that the processing is necessary in order to perform a task in the public interest as set out in the Representation of the People Act 1983 and related legislation.

The Electoral Registration Officer is legally required to process your personal information securely and comply with data protection legislation.

If you opted-out of the open register, your name and address can only be used for electoral purposes and other limited purposes specified in law. The law allows your information to be used for democratic engagement activities (by political parties, candidates, and agents), detecting crime, jury summoning, and checking credit applications.

If you did not opt-out of the open register, your name and address can be bought by anyone and used for lots of purposes, including direct marketing.

For further information relating to the processing of personal information, you can contact the Electoral Registration Officer to request a copy of their privacy statement. You can find their website address and contact details at electoralcommission.org.uk/voter.
