They deliver a wide range of programmes, some of which are open to all young people, while others use a much more targeted approach. This includes detached youth work, mainly during school holidays, where they take youth workers and equipment into parks in the most deprived parts of Rotherham. Titans also have a mental health programme that supports young people with low level mental health issues, a crime prevention programme, employability programmes and activities that help young people improve their health and well being. Alongside this they provide after schools clubs, home work clubs and mental health workshops to over 4000 young people a year which is delivered in partnership with schools across Rotherham.
