Dear [REDACTED]

RE: Request for Information – RFI4588

Thank you for your recent email, which was processed under the Environmental Information Regulations 2004 (EIR).

You requested the following information:

We are undertaking some market research on the UK real estate market. As such we would like to request:

Land ownership by Homes England

- a. by location (local authority or MSOA level)
- b. by plot size
- c. by type (greenfield, brownfield, etc)
- d. by development restriction (green belt, national park, etc.)
- e. by prior transaction value

Response

We can confirm that we do hold some of the requested information. However, to comply with your request would present a disproportionate burden on our resources. We therefore rely on regulation 12(4)(b), exception where the request is manifestly unreasonable.

The full text of the legislation can be found on the following link and we have quoted regulation 12(4)(b) below for ease.

Regulation 12(4)(b) – Manifestly Unreasonable

Regulation 12(4)(b) of the EIR provides an exception to the duty to disclose environmental information where the request is manifestly unreasonable. The information requested engages this exception because the information relating to prior transaction value is not stored centrally. It would involve interrogating each parcel of land to acquire the figure. Sometimes, we acquire land in parts, meaning that there would be multiple transaction values to identify the total acquisition cost for one piece of land we own. We also consider that some of the information would be likely to engage the exception contained in Regulation 12(5)(e) – confidentiality of commercial or industrial information. Identifying the information which is likely to engage the exception would involve further and more detailed interrogation of the files. We consider that responding to this part of the request would cause a disproportionate burden on Homes England's resources.

We have considered whether it would be appropriate to rely on regulation 7(1) of the EIR, which would permit Homes England to extend the time limit for compliance to a maximum of 40 working days in order to facilitate compliance with the request. However, we still consider that the complexity and volume of information requested means that it is impracticable to comply with the request within 40 working days.

Public Interest Test

Regulation 12(4)(b) is subject to the Public Interest Test. Once the exception has been engaged it is then necessary to consider the balance of the public interest in maintaining the exception or disclosing the information.

Under regulation 12(2) Homes England must apply a presumption in favour of disclosure, in both engaging the exception and carrying out the public interest test. In relation to engaging the exception, this means that there must be clear evidence that disclosure would have the adverse effect listed in regulation 12(4)(b).

Public interest in favour of disclosure:

- Homes England acknowledges that there is a presumption in favour of disclosure regarding environmental information as well as a public interest in promoting transparency in how we undertake our work and allocate public money;

Public interest in maintaining the exception:

- Homes England is a small public authority with limited resources. Identifying the environmental information that would engage regulation 12(5)(e) in all of the documents identified in scope of this request would place a disproportionate burden on our resources and would prevent us from answering other requests.
- Much of the requested environmental information consists of information that was provided or created by Homes England and third parties. Homes England would be required to consult with involved third parties about the disclosure of the environmental information and considers that the review of this information would place a disproportionate burden on the other third parties involved.
- We estimate that there are around 1,400 parcels of land that fall within scope of your request. Each parcel of land will have a not insignificant number of supplementary documents that will contain the information requested, relating to the prior transaction value. We do not consider that this is a proportionate use of our limited resources and will impact our ability to respond to other requests and disrupt the delivery of Homes England's work.
- Homes England has been unable to identify a wider public interest in disclosing the information requested.

Having considered the argument for and against disclosure of the information, we have concluded that at this time, the balance of the public interest continues to favour non-disclosure.

Advice and Assistance

Regulation 9(1) provides that an authority must provide advice and assistance to applicants. In accordance with this we can advise that if the request did not ask for prior transaction values, the other aspects of the request could likely be provided in a way that did not present a significant burden to our resources. You should be aware that Homes England does not hold information in relation development restrictions, as set out in part d of your request.

Please note that due to the broad scope of your request we cannot confirm that any further request would not also be considered manifestly unreasonable pursuant to regulation 12(4)(b) EIR.
