INTRODUCTION

1. It is a key principle of the Ministerial Code that “Ministers must ensure that no conflict arises, or appears to arise, between their public duties and their private interests”. Ministers take personal responsibility for deciding whether and what action is needed to avoid a conflict or the perception of a conflict. They are supported in such decisions by advice from their permanent secretaries and the Independent Adviser on Ministers' Interests.
2. The Ministerial Code stipulates that, on appointment to each new office, ministers are required to complete a declaration of all interests that might be thought to give rise to a conflict. Ministers are also asked to complete a new declaration whenever there is a substantial change to their portfolio and are expected to inform their department of any substantive change in their circumstances during the intervening period.
3. The declarations that ministers provide are treated in confidence. This allows for the fullest possible disclosure even where matters may not necessarily be relevant. The declaration is reviewed by the permanent secretary, who brings to bear an in-depth understanding of the minister's portfolio and responsibilities and the associated activity of the department. The permanent secretary provides advice on any action that should be taken, including for example, a minister recusing themselves from decision-making on a particular issue. The declaration together with that advice is then shared with my secretariat.
4. One role of the Independent Adviser on Ministers' Interests is to provide independent advice on the arrangement of a minister's personal affairs so as to ensure that no conflict arises, or appears to arise, between their public duties and their private interests. Chapter 7 of the Ministerial Code (paragraphs 7.3 to 7.8) describes the process by which ministers, on the advice of permanent secretaries and the Independent Adviser, determine the steps needed so that interests that are retained can be managed in a way which does not give rise to a conflict of interest.
5. The Ministerial Code requires that a statement covering relevant ministers' interests be published twice yearly. This statement takes the form of a List of Ministers' Interests. A role of the Independent Adviser is to advise on what it is necessary to publish within the list. The list is not a register of interests and does not therefore include every interest that a minister has declared in relation to themselves and their family members. To do so would represent an excessive degree of intrusion into the private affairs of ministers that would be unreasonable, particularly in respect of their family members. The list instead documents those interests, including of close family, which are, or may be perceived to be, directly relevant to a minister's ministerial responsibilities. The list also includes where ministers have roles in charities and non-public organisations, for example as a patron or trustee.
6. This List of Ministers' Interests records the relevant interests of all ministers forming part of the government as at 14 December 2023. It should be read alongside the parliamentary registers of interests, in which all ministers maintain entries (House of Commons Register of Members' Financial Interests and the House of Lords Register of Members' Interests) and any relevant information published by the Electoral Commission.

7. This year, I am pleased that the Prime Minister has approved a number of changes to strengthen the ministerial interests process. Ministers now attest, when completing their declaration of interests, that they accept the provisions of the Ministerial Code and their personal responsibility for deciding how to act and conduct themselves in light of the Code. Ministers have an ongoing duty to uphold the provisions of the Ministerial Code and the attestation serves as a reminder of this duty.
8. Ministers are also now invited to provide additional information in a number of areas, for example in relation to recent previous employment that may be perceived to have a bearing on their ministerial portfolio. I consider that requesting details concerning recent previous employment (remunerated or unremunerated) is an important additional contribution in the process for assessing the experience and connections of ministers which may have relevance to their roles, or be perceived to do so. This is particularly pertinent in the case of ministers whose appointment to the government occurs simultaneously with their elevation to the House of Lords and where any of their recent activities in business and other areas will not, as a consequence, have been recorded in the House of Lords' Register of Members' Interests. Whilst these roles must now be disclosed by ministers to their permanent secretaries and myself, I exercise discretion in determining those that should be published in the list, taking account of the views of permanent secretaries and ministers concerning their relevance to particular portfolios and the time since a role ceased.
9. I am content that any actual, potential and perceived conflicts have been, or are in the process of being, resolved, but it is important that ministers and their permanent secretaries remain alert in the context of their respective portfolios if ministers' interests change.

Sir Laurie Magnus CBE
Independent Adviser on Ministers' Interests

14 December 2023

GUIDE TO THE CATEGORIES OF INTEREST

Ministers are asked to declare their relevant interests to their permanent secretaries and the Independent Adviser in a number of categories. Permanent secretaries and the Independent Adviser advise on the management of any interests that may conflict, or appear to conflict, with specific ministerial portfolios. The Independent Adviser also considers which interests require publication in the List of Ministers' Interests because they may be deemed relevant to a minister's portfolio.

As a general principle, all list entries should be read alongside the parliamentary registers of interests (House of Commons Register of Members' Financial Interests and the House of Lords Register of Members' Interests) and any relevant information published by the Electoral Commission.

There are a number of departments with policy areas that have broad commercial relevance: the Prime Minister's Office, HM Treasury, Department for Business and Trade, Department for Science, Innovation and Technology, and Department for Energy Security and Net Zero. In light of this, the entries for ministers in these departments in particular should be read alongside the parliamentary registers. Links to the registers are included in these sections for this purpose.

1. Financial interests

The list includes financial interests held by a minister that are relevant, or may be perceived to be relevant, to their ministerial portfolio. It is not therefore a register of all financial interests.

The list indicates where financial interests are held in a blind trust or similar blind management arrangement. Such arrangements are longstanding mechanisms for protecting ministers in the handling of their interests. They ensure ministers are not involved in decisions on the management, acquisition or disposal of interests held under such arrangements and do not have live knowledge of the contents of such arrangements. The list also provides information on ministers' involvement with trusts that are not blind, for example family trusts where a minister may be a trustee, beneficiary, non-beneficiary or any combination of these.

The list also includes information on pensions that are relevant to a minister's portfolio.

2. Directorships and shareholdings

Directorships

While ministers would not normally retain directorships while in office, the Independent Adviser may advise, in some specific circumstances, that it is acceptable for a directorship to be retained, for example in connection with the management of a residential property or small family enterprise, subject to specific undertakings to avoid any conflict. Recently appointed ministers sometimes need time to arrange their retirement from private company directorships and, in such cases, the relevant directorships are included in the list. All such positions are generally expected to be unpaid.

Shareholdings

Information on shareholdings should be read alongside the relevant parliamentary register. The registers maintained by the House of Commons and House of Lords include details of all shareholdings held by MPs and peers over certain thresholds.¹ The List of Ministers' Interests does not generally duplicate this information and is not a register of all interests. However, where shareholdings are held by particular ministers that are below the parliamentary thresholds for disclosure, but are deemed to be relevant to their respective portfolios, these are included within the list.

3. Investment property

The list includes investment properties where relevant to the minister's ministerial portfolio. It is not therefore a list of all investment properties.

4. Public appointments

In line with paragraph 7.11 of the Ministerial Code, most public appointments are relinquished on appointment to ministerial office. Where exceptionally it is proposed that such an appointment should be retained, for example, to allow for a replacement to be recruited, ministers are expected to seek the advice of their permanent secretary and the Independent Adviser.

For the purposes of the list, public appointments are those which are regulated public appointments, as found on the Public Appointments Order in Council or any direct appointments made by a minister.

5. Charities and other non-public organisations

The list includes affiliations with charities and non-public organisations, such as where a minister is a patron, trustee, director or adviser. It also includes memberships or other associations if relevant to their ministerial portfolio.

6. Any other relevant interests

The list includes other interests which could have relevance to their specific ministerial responsibilities, for example a relevant business based in their constituency, former employment that may have relevance to a minister's portfolio, or membership of a Town Deal Board or relevant community groups.

7. Interests of spouse, partner or close family member

Under paragraph 7.3 of the Ministerial Code, ministers are expected to disclose to their permanent secretary the interests of their spouse or partner and close family which might be thought to give rise to an actual or perceived conflict. Where a spouse or partner's interests are deemed to be potentially relevant to a minister's portfolio, arrangements are put in place to manage this.

¹ The House of Commons Register of Members' Financial Interests includes shareholdings which i) amount to more than 15% of the issued share capital of that company, or more than 15% of a partnership and/or ii) are valued at more than £70,000. The House of Lords Register of Members' Interests includes any shareholding either (a) amounting to a controlling interest, or (b) not amounting to a controlling interest, but exceeding £100,000 in value; any private equity investment worth more than £100,000 or constituting more than 10 per cent of the fund or investment; and any corporate debt security with a value exceeding £100,000.

Additional care is taken in considering which interests held by ministers' family members should be included in the list so as to avoid excessive and unreasonable intrusion into their lives. It is important to recognise the right of these individuals to a degree of privacy over their affairs and also to avoid compromising their ability to continue in gainful trade and/or employment. Accordingly, judgements are made about which interests are directly and significantly relevant and should therefore be included in the list. What counts as "close family" is determined on a case by case basis. Ministers cannot be expected to know the detail of the affairs of all those they are related to, but where they have close and ongoing contact ministers are expected to take reasonable steps to ensure they adhere to their responsibilities under Chapter 7 of the Ministerial Code.

8. Tax affairs, duty to comply with the law and conduct in light of the Ministerial Code

In addition, ministers are asked to confirm that:

- their tax affairs are up to date;
- the arrangement of their affairs is consistent with their overarching duty to comply with the law; and
- they accept the provisions of the Ministerial Code issued by the Prime Minister and their personal responsibility for deciding how to act and conduct themselves in the light of it.
