Before you apply for your driving licence, please ensure that you can meet the following standards:

if there is a history of alcohol disorder without high-risk features, you are required to show abstinence or controlled drinking for at least 6 months.

if there is a history of alcohol disorder with high-risk features, you are required to show abstinence from alcohol for 1 year before licensing will be considered. After licensing occurs, continued licensing will depend on, continued ongoing abstinence for at least 3 years.

Abstinence means not drinking any alcohol.

The high-risk features are:

- alcohol withdrawal seizures.
- medication assisted alcohol withdrawal needed or required.

If you have had a seizure which was not caused by alcohol withdrawal and have not previously declared it to DVLA, please follow instructions provided online at www.gov.uk/convulsions-and-driving

Recommended low risk limits

The UK Chief Medical Officers' guideline for both men and women is that to keep health risks from alcohol to a low level, it is safest not to drink more than 14 units a week on a regular basis. Find out more online at www.nhs.uk/conditions/Alcohol-misuse/Pages/Introduction.aspx

You must also meet all other medical standards for safe driving. Your healthcare professional should be able to advise whether you meet the licensing standards. To view the current standards, go to www.gov.uk/dvla/fitnesstodrive
