Patent Cooperation Treaty (PCT)

GB receiving office notes for private applicants

This note is intended to serve as a basic introduction to filing International patent applications under the Patent Cooperation Treaty (PCT) with the GB Receiving Office at the Intellectual Property Office.

Whilst we have made every effort to cover important aspects this note is not comprehensive and you are advised to read the various PCT Guides issued by WIPO (World Intellectual Property Organisation) and to seek advice when in doubt.

THE PCT SYSTEM IS COMPLEX. YOU ARE STRONGLY ADVISED TO SEEK THE HELP OF A CHARTERED PATENT ATTORNEY.

Deadlines

A chart showing the timelines for action on your application is attached at ANNEX B.

Reminders will not be issued at any stage during the processing of your application and failure to meet deadlines may mean you incurring surcharges or even losing your application.

Introduction

The Patent Cooperation Treaty (PCT) system allows applicants seeking patent protection, in a number of countries, to file a single international application in English with the Intellectual Property Office. The International Unit at the Intellectual Property Office acts as the GB Receiving Office under the PCT. A PCT application has the same effect as a regular filing in each of the national or regional Offices of the PCT Contracting States that you select or designate when you complete the PCT Request form PCT/RO/101.

Your PCT application is processed through 2 basic stages, the International Phase and the National (for example: seeking a national UK patent) or Regional Phase (for example: seeking a regional European patent).

Remember the international phase is only a preliminary process of search and publication with the option of a non - binding preliminary examination. To obtain a granted patent in any country, including the United Kingdom you will need to process the application with each country or region according to national/ regional laws.

International Phase

The International Phase covers the period up to the point at which your application enters the National or Regional Phase.

Initially you should file one copy of your International application with one request form. The GB Receiving Office will check the international application to ensure that the formal requirements of the PCT have been met. They will retain a copy on your file in the International Unit at the Intellectual Property Office and forward a copy to the International Bureau of WIPO in Geneva, and a copy to the European Patent Office at The Hague, who are the International Searching Authority for applications filed at the GB Receiving Office.

Within approximately 7 to 10 working days from receipt of the application, you will receive notification of the PCT application number and the international filing date given. You will be informed of any outstanding formal requirements, and you will be given a time period, usually two months, in which to respond from the initial filing date of your PCT application.

Within 16 months of the earliest priority date claimed (see Q11) (or 9 months where no priority has been claimed) you should receive the International Search Report (form ISA/210) along with a written opinion and information on time limits for filing amended claims.

Publication

Promptly after 18 months from the earliest priority date, WIPO will publish your application. The International Bureau will advise you using form IB/308 that a copy has been sent to each of the designated offices.

Withdrawal of an International Application

If you do not want your application to be published you must request its withdrawal in writing direct to either the GB Receiving Office or to the International Bureau. However even though under PCT rule 90b is notices of withdrawal of international applications, designations or priority claims may be submitted to the Receiving Office, and notices of withdrawal of demands or elections may be submitted to the International Preliminary Examining Authority for onward transmission to the International Bureau, applicants are strongly advised to send all notices of withdrawal direct to the International Bureau.

This will prevent any possible delay that may occur as a result of the extra administrative step that is required when such a notice is sent via another Office. The request must reach the International Bureau no later than 17 months and 2 weeks from the earliest priority date to prevent publication.

Sending Notices of Withdrawal to the International Bureau

To avoid any problems caused by delays in the mail, applicants are advised to submit all notices of withdrawal directly to the International Bureau by using ePCT (WIPO IP Portal), or in cases where ePCT is unavailable, the Contingency Upload Service (See details in the PCT Newsletter 11/2019, pages 1-2).

(It is recalled that any notice of withdrawal sent by e-mail will not be acted upon by the International Bureau since e-mails are not permitted as a means of communication – See PCT Newsletter No. 12/2001, page 13).

International Preliminary Examination

You may decide that you require an International Preliminary Examination and this can be requested by filing a PCT Demand form (PCT/IPEA/401).

The time limits are 3 months from the date of the transmittal of the International Search Report and written Opinion (this will give you an initial and non-binding opinion as to whether your invention is novel, non-obvious, and industrially applicable), of the International Searching Authority (ISA) or 22 months from the priority date, the time limit of 19 months still applies in respect of a few offices, (please see the website for this information <http://www.wipo.int/pct/en/index.html>).

The handling fee for the International Preliminary Examination is due one month from filing the Demand form and has to be submitted directly to the International Preliminary Examination Authority (IPEA).

National/Regional Phase

If you opt for an International Preliminary Examination by filing a demand form. You may then enter the National or Regional Phase, of the countries designated, after you have received your international preliminary examination report. Entering each national or regional phase must, however, be done within the time limit for each of the countries you wish to enter. The Intellectual Property Office has an entry time of 31 months from the earliest priority date. The documents (national forms, translations etc.) and fees must be received by the Offices you have designated in your application within the time limit of each Office.

If you do not opt for an International Preliminary Examination you will need to make similar arrangements to enter the National or Regional Phase at 31 months from the earliest priority date.

The time limits specified by each designated office must be checked with each individual Office or can be found in the PCT Applicants Guide National Chapters or on the World Intellectual Property Organisation Internet site, PCT System. (<https://www.wipo.int/pct/en/guide/index.html>)

In both instances you are strongly advised to contact the national or regional Offices of each state or region designated, identify their local requirements and prepare for entry well in advance (please see the following questions and answers). The GB Pre - Grant formalities divisions can help with entry into the UK National Phase; information can be obtained by telephoning the Intellectual Property Office on 01633-814619.

Common Questions

The following Question and Answer items deal with the most common questions that have been asked by applicants under the PCT.

Q1. What do I need to file when making an International application?

A. To apply you must file the following:

- Request form RO/101
- Description
- One or more Claim(s)
- Abstract
- Drawings (if referred to in description)
- Fees*

*These may be filed later, (see Q.5)

One copy of the description, claims and drawings is required. If other documents are necessary the GB Receiving Office will request them. If a priority is claimed from an earlier application, you will need to file a copy of the priority application. This needs to be received by this office no later than 16 months after the earliest priority date.

Q2. Can anyone file a PCT Application with the GB Receiving Office?

A. No! At least one of the applicants must be a national or resident in the United Kingdom, Isle of Man, Guernsey or Gibraltar.

Q3. Where do I file?

A. The application must be sent to:

- Intellectual Property Office
- Patents International Unit
- Room 1G05
- Concept House
- Cardiff Road
- Newport
- South Wales
- NP10 8QQ

Q4. When do I file?

- A. The PCT works on strict deadlines, but you have two choices of when to file.
1. If you are claiming a priority from a National application for your International application you have 12 months from the earliest priority date in which to file the application to make sure you keep the priority date of the earlier application.
 2. If you do not have a priority case you can file for an International application whenever you are ready to do so.

You are advised to file the International application no later than 11 months from the priority date and, if you are posting your application, you are advised to use registered post.

The International Filing date will be the date of receipt at this office, providing certain minimum requirements of the PCT are met. If you are claiming priority from an earlier application, you should allow sufficient time for any required corrections to be made before the 12 months priority period expires; otherwise you will lose your priority date.

Q5. What will it cost?

- A. Fees can be found in Annex E of this booklet.

Q6. Are these the only costs?

- A. No, these are only the minimum initial fees.

A fee for the International Preliminary Examination, and further substantial fees must be paid in each state or region when your application enters the National or Regional Phase. After this you will pay renewal fees to maintain your patent protection in each of those National states or region(s). (This information can be found on the WIPO web site: www.wipo.int).

Q7. Can anyone say what the whole cost will be?

- A. Not at the outset.

Other fees may be payable, depending on the precise nature of your application. The fees charged under the PCT may change reflecting currency exchange rates and the payments required for entry into the National/Regional Phase may vary from state to state.

Q8. Where must I pay?

- A. The PCT application filing fees should be paid to the Intellectual Property Office at the address given in this note.

The fee for international preliminary examination should be paid directly to the European Patent Office in Munich (known as the EPO) and the National or Regional phase fees should be paid directly to the Patent Offices of the individual states or regions concerned.

Q9. Can the costs be reduced?

- A. No, PCT fees must be paid in full.

However, you could get a feel as to whether a PCT application is worthwhile by first filing a UK national application with a Patents Form 1 (Request for grant of a patent) and proceeding as far as the search stage. The application fee is £60 if e-filed and paid at the time of filing the application (the fee is higher if filed on paper or if paid later) and a Form 9A (Request for search) is £150 if e-filed, or £180 if filed on paper.

If you still wish to continue with an International filing, your UK application could then be used as a priority claim for a PCT application, provided the PCT application was filed within 12 months. This time could be used in identifying potential markets or backers to fund the development of your idea. (see ANNEX E for e-filed applications, forms for PCT SAFE can be found on the WIPO Website).

Q10. What is PCT e-filing?

- A PCT E-filing is filing a PCT application electronically over the Internet by secure means. To obtain access for this you will need to obtain a smart card from the EPO at: <http://nrm2.epoline.org/myepoline/pcf/mainMenu.html>. You will then receive a software start up pack, smart card and reader. You will receive a pin number separately.

ePCT is the World Intellectual Property Office's secure online service for filing:

- International PCT patent applications

You can join the service by creating a WIPO account, setup strong authentication and file via a web browser-based system, from the World Intellectual Property Office \(WIPO\).

ePCT \(wipo.int\)

There is a fee reduction for e-filing and this can be found in ANNEX E at the back of this booklet.

Q11. Can I claim priority from an earlier application?

- A. Yes, in fact you can claim priority from more than one earlier application.

However you must file your PCT application within 12 months of the earliest application! This time limit is very important. However, if you file your PCT application between the 12-14 months from the earliest application, you may request Restoration of Priority if you can provide evidence that the failure to file within the 12 month time limit was unintentional. There will be a fee of £150. See Annex E.

If you claim priority from an earlier application, you should ensure that a copy of that application (certified by the Office that issued it) reaches the International Bureau or the GB Receiving Office within 16 months of the earliest priority date. Failure to do this may result in loss of priority.

The International Bureau will confirm receipt of the priority document.

You should ask the issuing office to prepare any certified copy that you need and pay any fee that they require. If the priority document is a UK application you may ask the GB Receiving Office to prepare a copy and send it to the International Bureau for you, the fee for this is £20 per document.

If you require the GB Receiving Office to prepare and transmit copies of the results of an earlier search and other documents where the earlier search was carried out by the UK IPO, you may ask the GB Receiving Office within 16 months from the priority date to prepare a copy and send it to the International Searching Authority for you, (see Box No. VII of the PCT Request Form). The fee for this is £5.

If a copy of the earlier application is held in a digital library under the Digital Access Service (DAS) you may authorise the International Bureau to obtain a copy to use as a priority document.

Q12. What if I am filing an international application based on an earlier application and the 12 month period for claiming priority has expired? (and Restoration of Priority is not available).

- A. This is allowable but you must ensure that your new application is filed before your earlier application is published. If you do not file your new application until after your earlier application is published then your later application is likely to be ineffective. Even if you file your new application before your earlier application is published then the earlier application is likely to be listed as a potentially relevant document on the International Search Report. As this may affect the progress of your international application at a later stage, you should consider seeking professional advice from a chartered patent attorney before filing an international application under these circumstances.

Q13. What basic standards must my application meet?

- A. Because of uniform publication requirements your application must be typed and have minimum sized margins for the text and any drawings.

These and other requirements are shown in Annex A of this booklet. Other requirements can be found in the booklet Basic Facts about the Patent Cooperation Treaty (PCT), the world wide system for simplified multiple filing of patent applications (available from both the Intellectual Property Office and the World Intellectual Property Organisation (WIPO)).

Q14. How do I prepare claims?

- A. Advice on the preparation of claims can be found at Annex D of this booklet.

Unlike the UK Patents Act, the PCT does not allow a filing date to be accorded if no claims are present. It is, therefore essential that you file a claim or claims otherwise it will not be possible for the Receiving Office to accord a filing date to the application. Claims must be clearly identifiable and headed up as 'claims' and included on a separate sheet.

Where the application claims priority (See Q.11) and you file it without claims close to the end of the 12 months priority period, the subsequent correction of this defect may well result in loss of the priority date.

Q15. What happens if there are errors in my application or if I wish to change my application?

- A. Opportunities to amend the claims and description arise at various stages of the PCT procedure (see Q.14 and Q.15).

Other than this, there is relatively limited scope under the PCT to make changes to your application after filing. Even where it is possible strict time limits and other conditions may apply. You should therefore take great care in the preparation of your application, and if possible seek the professional help of a Patent Attorney (a list of these can be found in a telephone directory).

If you do want to make changes, you should write as soon as possible to the GB Receiving Office. As a general rule, it will not be possible to add to the technical content of the application or to correct errors where it is not immediately obvious what the required correction is.

It is however possible to change some details of applicants, or withdraw priority claims.

Q16. Will I have the chance to amend claims after filing my application?

- A. When the International search report has been received you will have the opportunity to amend claims, although a time limit is applied and this is normally within 2 months of the date of the Search Report.

Q17. How do I request an International Preliminary Examination?

- A. The Demand form (PCT/IPEA/401) and the fee must be sent to:

European Patent Office
PCT Chapter II (IPEA)
D-80298 Munich
Tel: 0049 89 2399 2700

For time limits see International Preliminary Examination (page 3). The fees can be paid into the EPO bank account:

Account No 86987266
Sort code 20 47 35

Barclays Bank plc
International Corporate
PO Box 391
38 Hans Crescent
Knightsbridge
London SW1X 0LZ

Copies of the Demand form are available from the Intellectual Property Office on request and a sample of the current form is enclosed within the information pack. However, the cost can vary due to changes in the currency exchange rates and you should contact the EPO Munich, in advance, to confirm the current charge.

Q18. When can I file a demand?

- A. A demand for international preliminary examination may be filed at any time prior to the expiration of 3 months from the date of transmittal of the International Search Report and Written Opinion of the International Searching Authority, or 22 months from the priority date, whichever time limit expires later (Rule 54bis.1(a)).

Q19. I understand that a demand does not have to be filed before the expiration of 19 months from the priority date in order to get the benefit of 30 months from the priority date to enter the national phase (in a State in which the modified Chapter I time limit applies). If I want to file a demand so that I can ensure that I obtain an international preliminary examination report (IPER) in sufficient time to be able to use it in my national phase filing decisions, when should I file it?

- A. You should file your Demand form as early as possible.

In order to increase the likelihood that the IPEA will be able to establish the IPER within a time frame that will enable you to make national phase entry decisions based on it, it is our recommendation that you continue to file your demand as early as possible, as the time limit for establishing International preliminary examination report is 28 months from the earliest priority date.

Q20. What if I wish to withdraw my application?

- A. The International application can be withdrawn at anytime before it enters the national or regional phase. To avoid any problems caused by delays in the mail, applicants are advised to submit all notices of withdrawal to the International Bureau by using ePCT, or in cases where ePCT is unavailable, the Contingency Upload Service (See details in the PCT Newsletter 11/2019, pages 1-2). Please see page 3 of this booklet for further information.

Q21. Where can I get help?

- A. It is strongly recommended that you seek advice from a Chartered Patent Attorney.

A Chartered Patent Attorney will help you draft and process your application. This includes the difficult stage of National Phase Entry, where translations and an address for service are likely to be needed for each state or region in which you wish to proceed.

Some Patent Attorneys may be able to suggest ideas for funding and marketing your invention, but this depends on the individual attorney concerned. In certain parts of the country Patent Clinics are available for inventors. This service is run free of charge, and for more information you should contact CIPA.

The Intellectual Property Office cannot recommend individual attorneys but you can contact the Chartered Institute of Patent Attorneys (CIPA), at the address below for further advice: -

Patent Factsheets: Drawings

The basis of a PCT patent application is a legal document called a specification. Its contents determine whether a patent can be granted. You would be well advised to seek professional assistance when preparing your patent application. A patent specification includes:

- a full description of your invention, plus any drawings referred to
- one or more claims

This factsheet tells you about the drawings. An example is shown overleaf. Other factsheets in this series explain how to prepare a description, claims, and an abstract (which is another essential part of an application).

Content

An application should preferably include a set of good-quality drawings which illustrate one or more embodiments of your invention. The drawings may, for example, illustrate different views of your product, or provide a flow chart of the steps taken to perform your method.

The drawings offer valuable support for the invention that is described and claimed in your application. It is therefore important that you illustrate all examples of your invention.

You should consider illustrating the invention from a number of different angles and, if appropriate, use cross-sectional views. You should also include figures of any important features that would be hidden in use.

Style and presentation

Your drawings must consist of black, well defined lines so that good quality photocopies may be made of them (see overleaf for an example). Photographs may be included providing they are black and white, clear and capable of direct reproduction.

You may have more than one drawing sheet. Each drawing sheet may contain several figures. If you have more than one figure on a page, label each figure clearly as 'Figure 1', 'Figure 2' and so on.

Number the drawing sheets in order at the top middle (but not in the top margin), preferably also indicating the total number of sheets of drawings. If you have one sheet, number it as '1/1'; if you have, for example, three sheets of drawings, then number them as '1/3', '2/3', '3/3'.

Specific features are indicated in the drawings using reference numbers and/or letters, joined to the corresponding feature by means of a clear, continuous line. These references are then used in the description to refer to those features.

The same reference number or letter must refer to the same feature in all figures that show it.

Capital letters used in any drawings must be at least 0.3cm high.

Prepare your drawings on one side only of separate sheets of white A4 paper. Leave margins of at least 2.0cm at the top and left-hand side, and 1.5cm on the right-hand side and 1.0cm at the bottom.

Any essential words (e.g. 'plan', 'elevation') must be in English or Welsh. (The Office will provide a translation of any material filed in Welsh).

Do not use coloured or lined paper or coloured inks or pencil.

Do not draw a frame to indicate the margins.

Do not put anything in the margins or use 'engineering' borders.

Do not write descriptive text in the drawings.

Do not use excessive shading which obscures other elements of the drawing.

Do not fold your drawings.

Do not submit 'engineering'-type drawings showing materials and/or dimensions; these are not normally suitable for use with patent specifications.

Use A4 paper

Note sheet numbering

All capital letters must be at least 0.3cm high

Note figure numbering

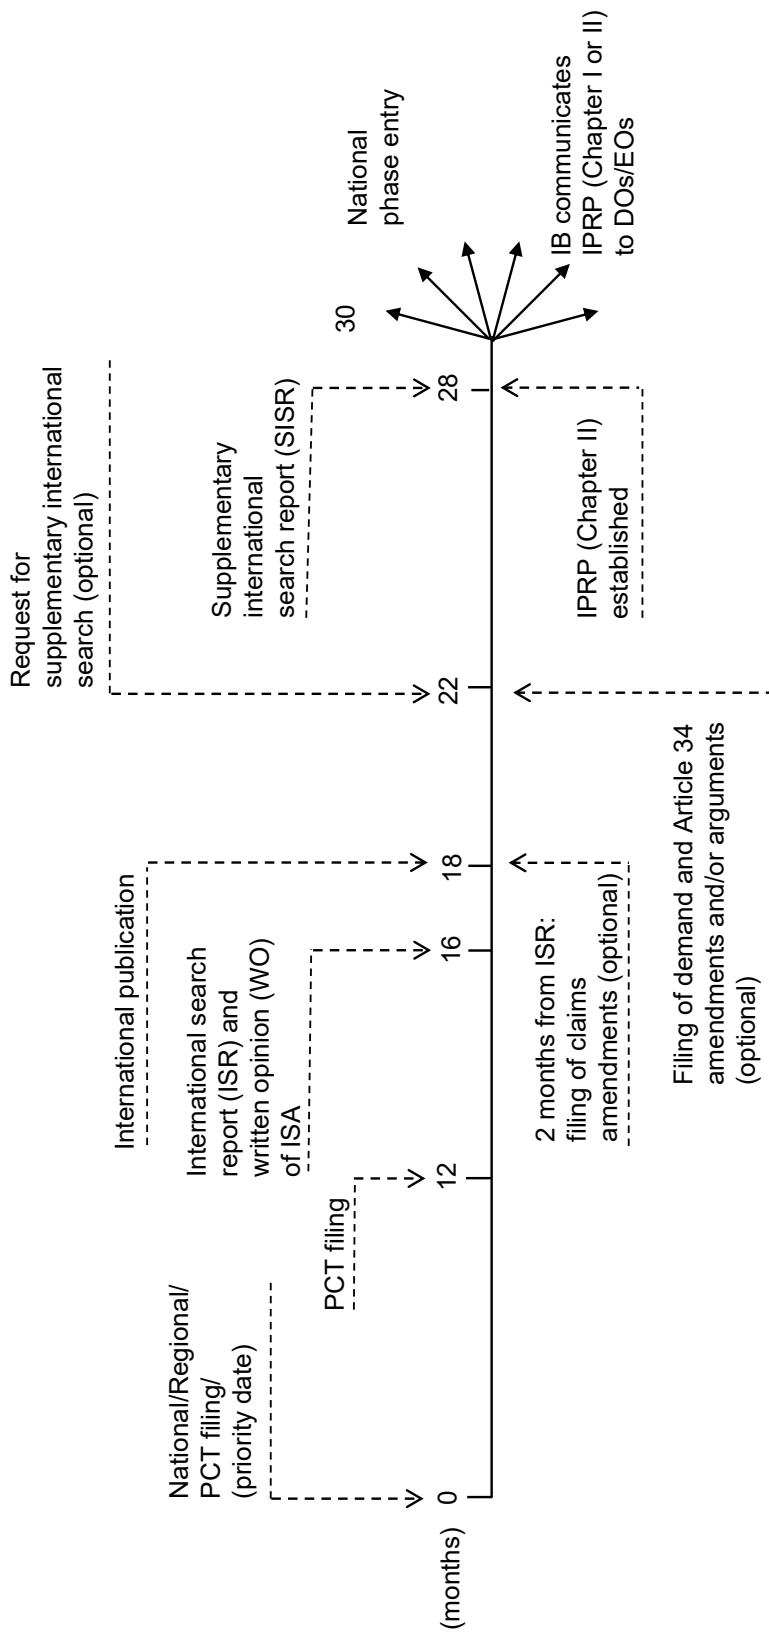

Note that the same reference numbers are used for the same features in all three figures

Note that the margins are free of drawings and text

Preparation of Claims

You should draft one or more claims which define clearly the invention for which you seek patent protection by setting out its distinctive technical features. The claim(s) should not contain any technical feature that is not contained in the description, or be inconsistent with it in any other way. You must not claim more than one invention.

When drafting a claim, you should aim to define an area of technology which is to become your, "property" and which is distinguished from other, known areas. Once a patent has been granted, anyone who enters your "property" without your permission would be infringing the patent. It is in your interest to draft your claim as widely as possible, provided it is properly based on what you have described and does not amount to something which is already known.

Claims should include at least a main claim that defines only those features, which are essential to the invention, e.g:

1. A demountable box trailer comprising a wheeled chassis, a body in the form of a box, means for releasably securing the body on the chassis, the body being adapted to slide on and off the chassis from the rear end thereof, and adjustable legs provided on the body at or adjacent the end thereof which is adjacent the rear end of the chassis when the body is mounted on the chassis'.

Strictly only this is necessary. However, as a safeguard in case the main claim is shown to be invalid, it is conventional to protect features that are desirable but not essential by means of dependant claims, e.g.

2. A demountable box trailer as claimed in claim1 wherein guide means are provided on the body co-operable with the chassis to control sliding movement of the body on the chassis.
3. A demountable box trailer as claimed in claim 2 wherein the guide means is provided at the end of the body remote from the adjustable legs.
4. A demountable box trailer as claimed in any preceding claim, wherein the body is provided with at least one hinged lid'.

Annex D

You should not file claims of the following types, which refer to advantages, merits, desired rewards or inventor ship:

'My box trailer enables the trailer part to be kept in use'.

'My box trailer is cheaper and more easily convertible than other box trailer'.

'I claim £250 for my box trailer'.

'I claim to be the inventor of the demountable box trailer'.
