- (2) The following are circumstances in which a suspension or removal from trading of a financial instrument could cause significant damage to the interests of investors or the orderly functioning of the market—
- (a) where it would create a systemic risk undermining financial stability, such as where the need exists to unwind a dominant market position, or where settlement obligations would not be met in a significant volume;
 - (b) where the continuation of trading on the market is necessary to perform critical post-trade risk management functions when—
 - (i) as a result of the default of a clearing member there is a need for the liquidation of financial instruments under the default procedures of a central counterparty, and
 - (ii) a central counterparty would be exposed to unacceptable risks as a result of an inability to calculate margin requirements;
 - (c) where the financial viability of the issuer would be threatened, such as where it is involved in a corporate transaction or capital raising.
- (3) In determining in any other circumstance whether a suspension or removal could cause significant damage to the interests of investors or the orderly functioning of the market, the FCA must have regard (among other things) to the following—
- (a) the liquidity of the market concerned, taking account of the fact that the consequences of a suspension or removal are likely to be greater where the market is more liquid;
 - (b) the nature of the suspension or removal, where actions with a sustained or lasting impact on the ability of investors to trade a financial instrument on trading venues, such as removals, are likely to have a greater impact on investors than other actions;
 - (c) the knock-on effects of a suspension or removal on sufficiently related derivatives, indices or benchmarks for which the removed or suspended instrument serves as an underlying or constituent;
 - (d) the effects of a suspension on the interests of market end-users who are not financial counterparties, such as entities trading in financial instruments to hedge commercial risks.
- (4) In this section—
- “central counterparty” has the same meaning as in Part 18 (see section 313(1))(a);
 - “clearing member”, in relation to a central counterparty, means an undertaking which participates in the central counterparty and which is responsible for discharging the financial obligations arising from that participation;

- (2) Those characteristics are—

 - (b) they are not derivatives, and
 - (c) they have a maturity at issuance of 397 days or less.

Paragraph 4 of Part 1: exclusion of certain derivative contracts relating to currencies

3.—(1) A derivative contract relating to a currency is not a financial instrument by virtue of the reference in paragraph 4 of Part 1 of this Schedule to “other derivative contracts” if the contract is—

- (a) a spot contract as defined in sub-paragraph (2), or
- (b) a means of payment that meets all the following conditions—
 - (i) it must be settled physically otherwise than by reason of a default or other termination event,
 - (ii) at least one of the parties is a person who is not a financial counterparty as defined in Article 2(8) of Regulation (EU) No 648/2012 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 4 July 2012 on OTC derivatives, central counterparties and trade depositories,
 - (iii) it is entered into in order to facilitate payment for identifiable goods, services or direct investment, and
 - (iv) it is not traded on a trading venue.

(2) For the purposes of sub-paragraph (1), a spot contract is a contract for the exchange of one currency against another currency, under the terms of which delivery is scheduled to be made within whichever of the following periods is applicable—

- (a) except where paragraph (b) applies—
 - (i) 2 trading days in respect of any pair of the major currencies specified in sub-paragraph (3), or
 - (ii) where at least one of the pair of currencies is not a major currency specified in sub-paragraph (3), the longer of 2 trading days or the period generally accepted in the market for that currency pair as the standard delivery period;
- (b) where the contract for the exchange of those currencies is used for the main purpose of the sale or purchase of a transferable security or a unit in a collective investment undertaking, the period generally accepted in the market for the settlement of that transferable security or a unit in a collective investment undertaking as the standard delivery period or 5 trading days, whichever is shorter.

(3) A contract is not to be considered a spot contract where, irrespective of its explicit terms, there is an understanding between the parties to the contract that delivery of the currency is to be postponed and not to be performed within the period set out in sub-paragraph (2).

(4) The major currencies for the purposes of sub-paragraph (2) are the US dollar, Euro, Japanese yen, Pound sterling, Australian dollar, Swiss franc, Canadian dollar, Hong Kong dollar, Swedish krona, New Zealand dollar, Singapore dollar, Norwegian krone, Mexican peso, Croatian kuna, Bulgarian lev, Czech koruna, Danish krone, Hungarian forint, Polish zloty and Romanian leu.

(5) For the purposes of sub-paragraph (2), a trading day means any day of normal trading in the jurisdiction of both the currencies that are exchanged pursuant to the contract for the exchange of those currencies and in the jurisdiction of a third currency where any of the following conditions are met—

- (a) the exchange of those currencies involves converting them through that third currency for the purposes of liquidity;
- (b) the standard delivery period for the exchange of those currencies references the jurisdiction of that third currency.

Paragraphs 6 and 7 of Part 1: wholesale energy products that must be physically settled

4.—(1) This paragraph has effect for the purposes of paragraphs 6 and 7 of Part 1 of this Schedule.

(2) A wholesale energy product must be physically settled where it satisfies all the following conditions—

- (a) it contains provisions which ensure that parties to the wholesale energy product have proportionate arrangements in place to be able to make or take delivery of the commodity concerned;
- (b) it establishes unconditional, unrestricted and enforceable obligations of the parties to the wholesale energy product to deliver and take delivery of the commodity concerned;
- (c) it does not allow either party to replace physical delivery with cash settlement;
- (d) the obligations under the wholesale energy product cannot be offset against obligations from other contracts between the parties concerned, without prejudice to the rights of the parties to the wholesale energy product to net their cash payment obligations.

(3) For the purposes of sub-paragraph (2)(a), a balancing agreement with the transmission system operator in the area of electricity and gas is to be considered a proportionate arrangement where the parties to the agreement have to ensure physical delivery of electricity or gas.

(4) For the purposes of sub-paragraph (2)(d), operational netting in power and gas markets is not to be considered as the offsetting of obligations under a contract against obligations from other contracts.

(5) In sub-paragraph (4), “operational netting” means any nomination of quantities of power and gas to be fed into a gridwork, upon being so required by the rules or requests of a transmission system operator for an entity performing an equivalent function to a transmission system operator at the national level, where the nomination of quantities is not at the discretion of the parties to the contract.

(6) The existence of force majeure or bona fide inability to settle provisions does not prevent a contract from being considered as “physically settled”, and in this sub-paragraph—

- (a) “force majeure” includes any exceptional event or set of circumstances which—
 - (i) is outside the control of the parties to the contract,
 - (ii) the parties to the contract could not have reasonably foreseen or avoided by the exercise of appropriate and reasonable due diligence, and
 - (iii) prevents one or both parties to the contract from fulfilling their contractual obligations;

- (b) “bona fide inability to settle” includes any event or set of circumstances, not qualifying as force majeure as referred to in paragraph (a), which are objectively and expressly defined in the contractual terms, as a ground for one or both of the parties to the contract, acting in good faith, not to fulfil their contractual obligations.

(7) The existence of a default clause providing that a party is entitled to financial compensation in the case of non-performance, or defective performance, of the contract does not prevent the contract from being considered as “physically settled”.

(8) The delivery methods for a contract that is to be considered as “physically settled” must include at least—

- (a) physical delivery of the relevant commodities themselves,
- (b) delivery of a document transferring ownership of the relevant commodities or the relevant quantities of the commodities concerned, or
- (c) other methods of bringing about the transfer of ownership of the relevant quantity of the commodities concerned without physically delivering them, including notification, scheduling or nomination to the operator of an energy supply network, that entitles the recipient to the relevant quantity of the commodities concerned.

Paragraph 7 of Part 1: treatment of certain derivative financial instruments

5.—(1) This paragraph has effect for the purposes of paragraph 7 of Part 1 of this Schedule, except in the case of—

- (a) a spot contract as defined in sub-paragraph (3), or
- (b) a contract which is for commercial purposes as provided by paragraph 6 of this Part of this Schedule.

(2) A contract is to be considered as having the characteristics of other derivative financial instruments where it satisfies both the following conditions—

- (a) it meets one of the following criteria—
 - (i) it is traded on a trading venue other than a UK trading venue,
 - (ii) it is expressly stated to be traded on, or is subject to the rules of, a UK regulated market, a UK MTF, or a UK OTF, or
 - (iii) it is equivalent to a contract traded on a regulated market, an MTF or an OTF, with regards to the price, the lot, the delivery date and other contractual terms;
- (b) it is standardised so that the price, the lot, the delivery date and other terms are determined principally by reference to regularly published prices, standard lots or standard delivery dates.

(3) For the purposes of sub-paragraph (1)(a), a spot contract is a contract for the sale of a commodity, asset or right, under the terms of which delivery is scheduled to be made within the longer of the following periods—

- (a) 2 trading days;
- (b) the period generally accepted in the market for that commodity, asset or right as the standard delivery period.

(4) A contract is not to be considered a spot contract where, irrespective of its explicit terms, there is an understanding between the parties to the contract that delivery of the commodity, asset or right is to be postponed and not to be performed within the period referred to in sub-paragraph (3).

Paragraphs 7 and 10 of Part 1: exclusion of certain energy contracts

6.—(1) Where both the conditions in sub-paragraph (2) are met, a contract is to be treated—

- (a) for the purposes of paragraph 7 of Part 1 of this Schedule, and of paragraph 5(1)(b) of this Part of this Schedule, as being for commercial purposes, and
- (b) for the purposes of paragraphs 7 and 10 of Part 1 of this Schedule, as not having the characteristics of other derivative financial instruments.

(2) Those conditions are—

- (a) that the contract is entered into with or by an operator or administrator of an energy transmission grid, energy balancing mechanism or pipeline network, and
- (b) that it is necessary to keep in balance the supplies and uses of energy at a given time, including the case when the reserve capacity contracted by an electricity transmission system operator is being transferred from one prequalified balancing service provider to another prequalified balancing service provider with the consent of the relevant transmission system operator.

(3) In sub-paragraph (2)(b), “balancing service provider” has the meaning given in Article 2 of Regulation (EU) 2019/943 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 5 June 2019 on the internal market for electricity^(a).

Paragraph 10 of Part 1: further derivative contracts included

7. In addition to the derivative contracts expressly referred to in paragraph 10 of Part 1 of this Schedule, a derivative contract is a “financial instrument” by virtue of that paragraph where it meets the criteria set out in that paragraph and in paragraph 8 of this Part and relates to any of the following—

- (a) telecommunications bandwidth;
- (b) commodity storage capacity;
- (c) transmission or transportation capacity relating to commodities, whether cable, pipeline or other means with the exception of transmission rights related to cross-zonal electricity transmission capacities when they are, on the primary market, entered into with or by a transmission system operator or any persons acting as service providers on their behalf and in order to allocate the transmission capacity;
- (d) an allowance, credit, permit, right or similar asset which is directly linked to the supply, distribution or consumption of energy derived from renewable resources, except where the contract is already within the scope of paragraph 4 of Part 1 of this Schedule;
- (e) a geological, environmental or other physical variable, except where the contract relates to any emission allowances referred to in paragraph 11 of Part 1 of this Schedule;
- (f) any other asset or right of a fungible nature, other than a right to receive a service, that is capable of being transferred;
- (g) an index or measure related to the price or value of, or volume of transactions in, any asset, right, service or obligation;

8. - (a) it is settled in cash or may be settled in cash at the option of one or more of the parties, otherwise than by reason of a default or other termination event;
- (b) it is traded on a regulated market, an MTF, or an OTF;

“PART 3

Direct electronic access and high-frequency algorithmic trading technique

“Direct electronic access”

7.—(1) This paragraph applies for the purposes of the exemption in paragraph 1(e).

(2) “Direct electronic access” means an arrangement where a member or participant or client of a trading venue permits a person to use its trading code so the person can electronically transmit orders relating to a financial instrument directly to the trading venue, including—

- (a) arrangements which involve the use by a person of the infrastructure of the member or participant or client, or any connecting system provided by the member or participant or client, to transmit the orders (direct market access), and
- (b) arrangements where such an infrastructure is not used by a person (sponsored access).

(3) A person is to be considered not capable of electronically transmitting orders relating to a financial instrument directly to a trading venue where either or both of the following apply—

- (a) that person cannot exercise discretion regarding—
 - (i) the exact fraction of a second of order entry, and
 - (ii) the lifetime of the order within that timeframe;
- (b) the electronic transmission of orders takes place through arrangements for optimisation of order execution processes that determine the parameters of the order other than the trading venue where the order should be submitted, unless these arrangements are embedded into the clients’ systems and not into those of—

(a) Substituted by S.I. 2018/1403.

- (i) the member or participant of a regulated market or of an multilateral trading facility, or

“High-frequency algorithmic trading”

8.—(1) This paragraph applies for the purposes of the exemptions in paragraph 1(e), (f) and (k).

(2) “Algorithmic trading” means trading in financial instruments where a computer algorithm automatically determines individual parameters of orders such as whether to initiate the order, the timing, price or quantity of the order or how to manage the order after its submission, with limited or no human intervention, and does not include any system that is only used for the purpose of routing orders to one or more trading venues or for the processing of orders involving no determination of any trading parameters or for the confirmation of orders or the post-trade processing of executed transactions.

(3) A system is to be considered as having limited or no human intervention where, for any order or quote generation process or any process to optimise order-execution, an automated system makes decisions at any of the stages of initiating, generating, routing or executing orders or quotes according to pre-determined parameters.

(4) A “high-frequency algorithmic trading technique” is an algorithmic trading technique characterised by—

- (a) infrastructure intended to minimise network and other types of latencies, including at least one of the following facilities for algorithmic order entry—
 - (i) co-location,
 - (ii) proximity hosting, or

- (b) system-determination of order initiation, generation, routing or execution without human intervention for individual trades or orders, and

(2) Sub-paragraphs (3) to (7) have effect for the purposes of the calculation in sub-paragraph (1).

(3) The following are to be included in the calculation—

- (a) messages concerning financial instruments for which there is a liquid market in accordance with Article 2(1)(17) of the markets in financial instruments regulation;
- (b) messages introduced for the purpose of a market-making strategy that satisfies the criteria in sub-paragraph (4).

(4) A market-making strategy satisfies the criteria in this sub-paragraph where the strategy—

- (a) is pursued by an investment firm as a member or participant in one or more trading venues when dealing on own account, and
 - (b) involves posting firm, simultaneous two-way quotes of comparable size and at competitive prices relating to one or more financial instruments on a single trading venue or across different trading venues, with the result of providing liquidity on a regular and frequent basis to the overall market.
- (5) Messages introduced for the purpose of dealing on own account are to be included in the calculation.
- (6) Messages introduced through trading techniques other than those relying on dealing on own account are to be included in the calculation where the firm’s execution technique is structured in such a way as to avoid that the execution takes place on own account.
- (7) For the calculation of a high message intraday rate in relation to direct electronic access providers, messages submitted by their clients with direct electronic access are to be excluded from the calculations.

Interpretation

10. Any expression used in this Part of this Schedule which is used in the markets in financial instruments regulation has the same meaning as in the regulation.”.

(5) For the purposes of the definition of “direct electronic access” in paragraph (1)(c), a person is to be considered not capable of electronically transmitting orders relating to a financial instrument directly to a trading venue where either or both of the following apply—

- (a) that person cannot exercise discretion regarding—
 - (i) the exact fraction of a second of order entry, and
 - (ii) the lifetime of the order within that timeframe;

- (b) the nature of the suspension or removal where actions with a sustained or lasting impact on the ability of investors to trade a financial instrument on trading venues, such as removals, are likely to have a greater impact on investors than other actions;
- (c) the knock-on effects of a suspension or removal on sufficiently related derivatives, indices or benchmarks for which the removed or suspended instrument serves as an underlying or constituent;
