Dear [REDACTED]

RE: Request for Information – RFI5205

Thank you for your recent email, which was processed under the Environmental Information Regulations 2004 (EIR).

You requested the following information:

Under the Freedom of Information Act 2000, I would like to request the following details regarding the approximately 10,000 Section 106 homes that were recently described as stalled:

- 1. The location (address or postcode) and local authority of each stalled unit.
- 2. The name of the developer or builder responsible for delivering each unit.
- 3. The expected or agreed purchase price (if available).
- 4. The name of any Registered Provider (RP), local authority, or specialist care provider that was offered or engaged in negotiations regarding the unit(s).
- 5. The reason(s) the RP or provider did not proceed (e.g. standard not met, location issues, viability, etc.).

Response

We can inform you that we do hold some of the requested information. However, we are withholding this information from disclosure under the following exception:

Regulation 12(5)(e) – Confidentiality of commercial or industrial information

Under regulation 12(5)(e) of the EIR, Homes England may refuse to disclose information to the extent that its disclosure would adversely affect the confidentiality of commercial or industrial information where such confidentiality is provided by law to protect a legitimate economic interest.

Four elements are required for Regulation 12(5)(e) to be engaged:

- 1) The information is commercial or industrial in nature;
The requested environmental information consists of information that has been provided to Homes England by commercial organisations about their business. Therefore it is commercial in nature as it relates to commercial activity.
- 2) Confidentiality is provided by law;
The withheld information is subject to confidentiality provided by law under a common law duty of confidence. The information has a common law duty of confidence because it is not trivial and not in the public domain.
- 3) The confidentiality is providing a legitimate economic interest;
There is a legitimate economic interest in commercial organisations being able to conduct their business and seek partnership and collaboration away from public scrutiny. If the confidentiality of this information was breached it would harm the ability of third parties to collaborate effectively. There is a legitimate economic interest in protecting the ability of Homes England and third parties to negotiate in current and future commercial agreements.
- 4) The confidentiality would be adversely affected by disclosure;
Disclosure would result in third parties gaining access to commercially valuable information. Disclosure of the confidential information would harm the ability of Homes England to achieve good value for public money.

Public Interest Test

Regulation 12(5)(e) is subject to the public interest test. Once the exception has been engaged it is then necessary to consider the balance of the public interest in maintaining the exception or disclosing the information.

Under regulation 12(2) the public authority must apply a presumption in favour of disclosure, in both engaging the exception and carrying out the public interest test. In relation to engaging the exception, this means that there must be clear evidence that disclosure would have the adverse effect listed in 12(5).

Factors in favour of disclosure

- Homes England acknowledge that there is a presumption in disclosure regarding environmental information as well as a public interest in promoting transparency in how we undertake our work and allocate public money; and

- Homes England acknowledges that there is a public interest in the development of affordable housing.

Factors in favour of withholding

- The Section 106 Affordable Housing Clearing Service (the 'Service') has been established to support the delivery of Section 106 affordable housing. Access to the Service is explicitly limited to housebuilders, registered providers and local authorities – all of whom have been verified by Homes England to ensure they have a genuine interest and role in selling, buying and/or enabling the selling and buying of Section 106 affordable homes. Housebuilders have shared information with Homes England on the understanding that it will only be shared with verified parties. Therefore, disclosure is likely to harm the trust and cooperation with our partners. This would undermine the Service, which would not be in the public interest and would not be in accordance with Homes England's core ambition to build trusting and collaborative relationships with our partners.
- The information requested is commercial in nature, and its release would be likely to prejudice the commercial interests of Homes England and other interested parties. Disclosure is likely to result in housebuilders being less inclined to shared information with Homes England, especially where they felt their commercial interests would be put at risk. This would negatively impact the development of affordable housing across England. This would not be in public interest and would not be in accordance with our strategic objectives.
- Releasing this information into the public domain would be likely to prejudice any future intervention Homes England may take to support its partners with Section 106 affordable housing delivery.
- Homes England has been unable to identify a wider public interest in disclosing the information requested.

Having considered the arguments for and against disclosure of the information, we have concluded that at this time, the balance of the public interest favours non-disclosure.
