

Putting police facial recognition on trial

Watch the trial and make your own judgement.
What's your view?

Public event

London School of Economics
14 June 2022

To get a better understanding of how facial recognition technology in policing and law enforcement is seen, the Biometrics and Surveillance Camera Commissioner is planning to put facial recognition on trial.

Taking place before a live audience, the event will imitate a civil hearing with evidence being heard from expert witnesses and with members of the public acting as a jury.

Admission is free. Register through the CRISP website. For more details, visit the Commissioner's website or email enquiries@obscc.org.uk

Organised by:

OFFICE OF THE BIOMETRICS
AND SURVEILLANCE
CAMERA COMMISSIONER

In conjunction with:

