2. Stop and Search

Table 2.1: Power to stop and search: Number of person and vehicle searches under section 47A of the Terrorism Act 2000 (previously under section 44 of the 2000 Act)

Section 47A of the Terrorism Act 2000 (Searches in specified areas or places) gives the police powers to stop and search vehicles and their occupants, and pedestrians, for the prevention of terrorism, provided that an authorisation is in place. Authorisations apply to a specific area or place and are for no longer than is necessary (under section 47A(7) and Schedule 6B up to a maximum of 14 days), though paragraph 11 of Schedule 6B means that period may be renewed. These provisions replaced section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000, and they were introduced by the Protection of Freedoms Act 2012. The Home Secretary ceased use of stop and search under section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000 on 8 July 2010. The stop and search powers under section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000 ceased to have effect on 10 July 2012.

- The powers of stop and search under section 47A of the Terrorism Act 2000 were not exercised in Northern Ireland in 2024.

3. Arrests

Table 3.1: Persons detained in Northern Ireland under section 41 of the Terrorism Act 2000

Tables 3.1, 4.1, 4.2, 5.1, 5.3 and 5.4 relate to section 41 of the Terrorism Act 2000 (Arrest without warrant) which provides that a constable may arrest without a warrant a person whom he or she reasonably suspects to be a terrorist. A person detained under section 41 may only be held by the police for a maximum of 48 hours unless an application has been made under paragraph 29 or 36 of Schedule 8 asking a court to issue or extend a warrant of further detention. Section 41(7) provides that if a warrant is issued a person may be detained for the period specified therein, for a period up to seven days. Section 306 (Limit on period of detention without charge of suspected terrorists) of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 amended Part 3 of Schedule 8 to the Terrorism Act 2000 (Extension of detention under section 41), extending the maximum period of detention from seven to fourteen days. Changes brought in by the Terrorism Act 2006 allowed for the maximum period of detention without charge to be extended from 14 days to 28. This was reduced to 14 days by the Protection of Freedoms Act 2012 in July 2012.

- In 2024, a total of 68 persons were detained in Northern Ireland under section 41 of the Terrorism Act 2000. April to June 2024 had the largest number of detentions (24). There were no applications for an extension of detention.

If the Secretary of State considers it necessary for the preservation of peace or the maintenance of order, he or she may authorise a person to take possession of land or other property, and carry out works on land, which has been so requisitioned (section 29 of the Justice and Security (Northern Ireland) Act 2007).

From 2010/11, the figures published refer to requisitions/de-requisitions carried out in respect of transferred matters. From August 2007 onwards, requisitions have been carried out under section 29 of the Justice and Security (Northern Ireland) Act 2007 and not under section 91 of the Terrorism Act 2000.
2. De-requisitions are carried out under the legislation under which the land was originally requisitioned. The original legislation may be either section 17 of the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1973, section 19 of the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1978, section 26 of the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1996, section 91 of the Terrorism Act 2000 or section 29 of the Justice and Security (Northern Ireland) Act 2007.

15. User Notes

- The Terrorism Act 2000 received Royal Assent on 20 July 2000 and mostly came into force on 19 February 2001. It provides permanent United Kingdom (UK)-wide counter-terrorist legislation and provides a legal framework and specific powers to combat the threat from all kinds of terrorist groups in a way that is consistent with Human Rights obligations. The UK-wide part of the Act is permanent, to ensure that powers needed to respond to terrorist threat are readily available. The Northern Ireland specific part of the Act (Part 7) was time-limited to five years. Subject to annual renewal, these temporary provisions were due to lapse in February 2006. The Terrorism (Northern Ireland) Act 2006 came into force on 18 February 2006, the main purpose of which was to extend those provisions of Part 7 still in effect, until 31 July 2007.
- The Justice and Security (Northern Ireland) Act was enacted in 2007 and is included in this bulletin where its provisions replace those under previous terrorism legislation. The Counter-Terrorism Act 2008 increased police powers for the stated purpose of countering terrorism and received Royal Assent on 26 November 2008.
- The content of this bulletin will be kept under review and additional information will be included when relevant material becomes available.
- Following a consultation exercise, data within this bulletin moved to a calendar year reporting format from 2021. For the tables that were financial year based prior to this, the 2021 report covered April to December only to facilitate the move. Where applicable, a footnote has been included alongside the table. This report covers data for the last five years. Figures for years prior to this are provided in the accompanying Microsoft Excel spreadsheet.
- This bulletin is designed to report on the key Northern Ireland specific terrorism legislation statistics. It should be noted that figures may be subject to minor revision, as most data are drawn from administrative or operational data sources. The figures are provided to the Northern Ireland Office by the Police Service of Northern Ireland, the Department of Justice (Northern Ireland), the Public Prosecution Service for Northern Ireland and the Northern Ireland Courts and Tribunals Service.
