A. Sharing legal advice for knowledge purposes

As set out in the Knowledge Sharing Policy (which can be found to the right of the Knowledge Sharing Across the GLP page here), GLD's view is that legal advice should be shared as widely as possible between government lawyers. Some of this knowledge will be shared on LION [REDACTED]

However, LION will not always be the most appropriate forum for sharing legal advice. For example, lawyers may wish to share legal advice, which may be confidential, on a specific matter with a smaller group. [REDACTED]

Legal Training

A significant amount of legal training is delivered to those members of the GLP with access through the Learning Management System (LMS). The LMS stores copies of training slides and recordings of training sessions. Course sponsors and speakers are asked to ensure that no privileged information is included in their slides and that recordings are edited to remove any such content before they are uploaded. More information is included on the LMS.
