Site safety

We are aware that some residents have asked about crane safety at the Grenfell Tower site after a crane collapsed at another construction site in West London earlier this month. The safety of residents and those working at the site is our highest priority, and is regulated by law. All equipment at the site is inspected regularly, and safety checks are carried out each day. Please email us at:

GrenfellTowerSite@communities.gov.uk if you have any concerns and would like to speak to the site team or the principal contractor, Deconstruct UK.

Grenfell heart banners

The banner lights will be repositioned at the end of the month, so they shine upwards onto the banners. The banners will stay in place for the ninth anniversary in June and will then be removed and stored safely on site, along with all previous sets.

Tower lighting

We have heard it is important that there is a visible reminder while the Tower is being carefully taken down. The beams of light will continue to shine upwards at each corner of the Tower every night, from dusk until 11pm. The lights shining on the Grenfell heart banners are also on from dusk until 11pm each night.

Monitoring information on dust, vibration, and noise

The government is committed to ensuring that all work at the Grenfell Tower site is carried out to the highest standards. The safety and wellbeing of the community and people working at the site remain our priority. There are monitors at the site collecting live data on dust, vibration, and noise. The data is published every month. To see the latest reports, please click on the links below:

The UK Health Security Agency (UKHSA) will continue to assess and monitor air quality in the area around Grenfell Tower while work takes place. It publishes its reports every month. You can see the latest report here:
