Sharing information about your disability, illness or health condition

The DWP or approved healthcare professionals that work for DWP, might need more information about your disability, illness or health condition and how it affects your ability to work.

They might ask for relevant information from your doctor, or any other relevant professional you tell them about.

How DWP uses this information

DWP uses this information to:

- process your claim
- make a decision on your claim, or any mandatory reconsideration or appeal you make.

The law allows DWP to get, keep and use this information.

Your doctor (or other relevant professionals you tell DWP about) needs your consent to give information to DWP. If you give your consent, this lets them know that they are legally allowed to share this information with DWP.

DWP can lawfully ask your doctor, hospital consultant or other relevant professionals for information about your disability, illness or health condition and how it affects you.

This is because we are asking for the information to help us carry out our official social security functions. You do not have to give your consent. If you do not, DWP will make a decision based on the information we have already, as well as any you give us yourself.

If you change your mind

You can change your mind. You can do this by using the contact information on the letter we have sent with this questionnaire and say you want to give or withdraw your consent. If you withdraw your consent, DWP cannot get information from your doctor or others named on your form.

26 Do you give consent for your doctor or other relevant professionals to give DWP more information about your disability, illness or health condition? Yes - I have read and understood how DWP uses information and agree information about my health can be shared with DWP or the healthcare professionals that work for DWP. No - Information about my health cannot be shared with DWP or the healthcare professionals that work for DWP.
