Treatment Allowance

What is Treatment Allowance?

Treatment Allowance is a short-term payable in place of basic War Pension and Allowance for Lowered Standard of Occupation (ALSO). If you incur a loss of earnings as a result of Treatment for your accepted condition(s) it is payable at the 100% rate of War Disablement Pension. This means, if Treatment Allowance is awarded, any basic War Pension is topped up to the 100% rate.

Please note, if your War Pension and ALSO add up to the 100% rate, Treatment Allowance will be of no monetary value to you.

Do you qualify for Treatment Allowance?

If you are having medical, surgical or rehabilitative treatment in a hospital or at home you may be entitled to Treatment Allowance if the treatment:

- is for the condition(s) you get a War Pension for
- stops you working
- causes you to lose earnings

If your treatment and necessary recovery time stops you working more than 8 days and you lose earnings, you may be entitled to Treatment Allowance.

If you do not qualify for Treatment Allowance as your treatment only involves occasional interruptions to your normal employment and you have a loss of earnings you may be entitled to Part-Time Treatment Allowance.

How much is Treatment Allowance?

Treatment Allowance is payable at the 100% rate of War Pension

The amount of your basic War Pension will be deducted from the 100% rate. If you are in receipt of ALSO, this will be deducted from the 100% rate.

If you were paid a lump sum gratuity because your War Pension disablement was assessed at less than 20%, we will take this into consideration when calculating the amount of Treatment Allowance payable.

If we decide you are entitled to Treatment Allowance, we may have to recover some money from the amount payable if you have received:

- Income Support
- Income based Job Seekers Allowance
- Employment Support Allowance

Treatment Allowance is of no monetary value if:

- you are in receipt of a 100% War Pension
- your War Pension and ALSO add up to the 100% rate of War Pension

Treatment Allowance not payable Treatment Allowance is not payable if:

- Treatment is not for your accepted disablement
- It is the condition preventing you from working
- You are not losing earnings

What is Part-Time Treatment Allowance?

It is an allowance that can be paid to a war pensioner who has incurred an actual and unavoidable Loss of Earnings as a result of occasional interruptions to their normal employment so they can receive “treatment” for their Accepted Disablement.

Part Time Treatment Allowance is payable to a war pensioner who receives treatment lasting seven days or less and loses earnings as a result.

Part Time Treatment Allowance is:

- paid in addition to basic pension
- limited to earnings lost and is subject to a maximum daily, weekly rate

We cannot pay Part-Time Treatment Allowance:

- if a war pensioner is receiving or eligible to receive Treatment Allowance
- if a claim is made for a day when the employer’s works were closed for holidays or other reasons
- for loss of casual overtime earnings or earnings from subsidiary occupations

Do you qualify for Part-Time Treatment Allowance?

If you are having medical, surgical or rehabilitative treatment in a hospital or at home that lasts for no longer than seven days you may be entitled to Part-Time Treatment Allowance if the treatment is:

- is for the condition(s) you get a War Pension
- causes you to lose earnings as a result of attendance

How much is Part-Time Treatment Allowance?

Part-Time Treatment Allowance is calculated in relation to earnings lost. It is payable in addition to basic pension

Information

If you are getting War Pensions Constant Attendance Allowance (CAA) with your War Pension and have been in a National Health Service (NHS) hospital, NHS Trust hospital or care home for 28 days or more we must suspend payment of your CAA. This is because the hospital or care home is looking after you. When you leave the hospital or care home, we will pay your CAA again. Any other benefits or allowances you receive may affect payment of Treatment Allowance. We will let you know if this is relevant in your case.
