Dear Secretary of State,

I write to you to oppose the plans to house over a thousand residents in a rural location near our [redacted] and children's primary school.

We as [redacted] have had absolutely no consultation or proper information provided, which I believe is directly in opposition to how Prime Minister Burnham has said local communities should be treated. I do hope that your policies apply not just to Labour constituencies.

This site is highly inappropriate due to it's remote location. Working farmland with cattle around it, country roads with no pavements and a lack of any nearby infrastructure would make it dangerous for the residents to live in. A full consultation and planning process would show this and therefore should absolutely be paramount to this planning to ensure safety to all. This cannot be pushed this as urgent without a consultation and proper planning permission, as any private business would be expected to do if building a project of such scale

Yours sincerely
